Huntington Beach Opened to Drilling

TOWN MUST BE MOVED TO NEW GROUND

Election to Permit Oil Operations in City Carries by Vote of 869-211

FIRE DISTRICT CLOSED

Newer and Better Municipality Is Planned by Council and Civic Bodies

PEOPLE OF HUNTINGTON BEACH

have voted to move their town. Yesterday, in a special election, voters of the Orange county coast city opened the entire city of Huntington Beach, with the exception of fire district No. 1, to oil drilling.

The issue carried by more than 4 to 1. A heavy vote was cast, with 869 in favor of allowing oil drilling in the town, and 211 opposing the issue.

The only portion of the town which remains closed to oil drilling is the section bounded by First street and Seventh street and Ocean avenue and Acacia avenue, which comprises fire district No. 1. City trustees will meet and canvass the vote next Monday night. Drilling cannot start in the newly-opened territory until December 2.

Planning Better City

Residents of Huntington Beach are planning to erect a newer and better city. The chamber of commerce, realty board and city trustees have taken steps to improve the district on the east side of town, where oil drilling has been carried on and failed, and it is expected that a paving and improvement program will be inaugurated in that section of town in the near future.

The vote: For prohibition, 420; for modification to permit light wines and beer, 458; for complete repeal, 81.

Of the women students, 102 voted for repeal or modification, against 84 for existing laws.

QUEEN OF RUMANIA GUEST OF PAROLED CONVICT AT SEATTLE THEATER, CLAIM

(By United Press)
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 17.—The San Francisco Chronicle today said that it has information proving that Queen Marie was the guest in Seattle of a paroled convict from San Quentin prison.

The paroled convict escorted the queen to a box in the President theater, and the queen leaned on his borrowed Tuxedo sleeve, the Chronicle states.

In addition, Her Majesty chatted with the San Quentin probationer for fully 20 minutes.

The paroled convict was said to be S. S. Millard, more familiarly known as "Sammy," sentenced to San Quentin for from one to 10 years for theft of stage properties of a girl show.

Not long after his parole, in October, he borrowed sufficient money to go to Seattle. His first move in the northern city was to interview all Rumanian residents, of whom there were said to be 43, including children, representing himself as grandson of a famous Rumanian general.

His scheme, which was to promote a theater performance for the benefit of Rumanian orphans, with Queen Marie and her party the guests, worked, and Millard returned to San Francisco with $900, which represented half the profits.

11 PIRATES IN 3 DESPERADOES CHINA SLAIN ON BRITISH VESSEL

(By United Press)
HONGKONG, Nov. 17.—Eleven Chinese pirates were killed and three captured today, when the British steamship Sunning, enroute from Shanghai to Hongkong, was attacked by a party of nine Indian natives and an attempt was made to kidnap the captain.

The girl escaped only after severe injuries, which were said to have marred her beauty for life.

The new white-bearded leader of the cult and his seven disciples were lodged in Berrien county jail until today, when they were taken before Justice Florence Forhan and given preliminary arraignment.

Admitting his identity, Purnell demanded a hearing for himself and his followers, which was set for December 22, in justice court here. He then was released on $50,000 bail, supplied by the cult, with $150,000 hotel as security.

Other members of the colony who were arrested were released on bail of $500 each. Purnell likewise later in court met a bond of $20,000, in connection with two suits alleging criminal assault.

Positive identification was made by Mrs. Bessie Woodworth, a former girl ward of Purnell's, who, with her husband, Emerald, accompanied the raiders.

Rewards totaling $4,000, including $800 by the state, were outstanding for the arrest.

Purnell, Fugitive Head of House of David, Admits Identity When Trapped

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Nov. 17.—Question over the validity of bond posted for freedom of Benjamin "King" Purnell, of the House of David, resulted in his commitment to jail here this afternoon. Bond of $50,000 had been posted by members of the House of David, with local property as the basis of security.

(By United Press)
ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Nov. 17.—A search of three and one-half years for Benjamin "King" Purnell, picturesque fugitive leader of the weird religious cult, the House of David, ended here today, when Michigan state troopers hacked their way into his headquarters and found him, surrounded by seven of his followers.

Purnell is wanted on statutory and civil charges growing out of alleged illegal practices of the colony and had been sought since 1923 here and abroad. His arrest followed information to state authorities by a disgruntled former member of Purnell's flock.

The new white-bearded leader of the cult and his seven disciples were lodged in Berrien county jail until today, when they were taken before Justice Florence Forhan and given preliminary arraignment.

Admitting his identity, Purnell demanded a hearing for himself and his followers, which was set for December 22, in justice court here. He then was released on $50,000 bail, supplied by the cult, with $150,000 hotel as security.

MANY SOUGHT IN RUM TRAFFIC WAR

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 17.—Nearly a score of persons were sought in Southern California today on conspiracy complaints, in connection with the coast-wide roundup of rum runners.

Six alleged whiskey runners, including George Ford, former captain of the notorious steamer Quadra, seized near San Francisco, two years ago, have already been arrested here.

John Murphy, alleged ringleader of the west coast rum band, was among those who were hunted. He is said to have acted as Pacific coast general agent for Canadian Consolidated Exporters, Ltd., an asserted $10,000,000 liquor combine.

Others named in the complaints include Frank Cornero, Joseph Layson, Frank Mason, Harry Young, Morris Finerback, Edward Logue, A. S. Rinckel, former federal drug agent; Pico Cornero, John McCusker and others.

Federal grand juries in various Pacific coast cities are to investigate the alleged rum plot.

MAHARAJAH, ON TOUR OF U.S., UNABLE TO SHIELD IDENTITY

Former Indian Prince Is Object of Curiosity In Salt Lake City

(By United Press)
SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 17.—The quiet, though luxurious tour of "T. Raj," through the United States, has been turned from an ordinary sight-seeing affair into an object of popular curiosity by the declaration of W. Ewart, his tour manager, that Raj is none other than the famous former Maharajah of Indore.

"Raj" arrived here a few days ago with a suite of a dozen secretaries and retainers, bent on "seeing the United States."

He had an elaborate suite in a hotel here and is seeing the sights of this old capital of the Mormon religion. He showed great interest in the tabernacle and other church edifices, for which Salt Lake is famous.

It was understood he would leave today or tomorrow for the Pacific coast, going first to San Francisco, then to Los Angeles and the motion picture colony and "could return east by way of the Grand canyon of the Colorado."

The Maharajah of Indore is one of the wealthiest of Indian princes. He rules over a large domain. But some two years ago, there came the startling case of Mumtaz Begum, a nauteh dancing girl, who had become the favorite of the maharajah's household and then had tried to become the consort of Abdul Ezziz, a wealthy Indian merchant. One day, while driving near Bombay with Mumtaz, Bawla was attacked by a party of nine Indian natives and an attempt was made to kidnap Mumtaz.

The girl escaped only after severe injuries, which were said to have marred her beauty for life.

GEORGE STERLING, POET, FOUND DEAD

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 17.—George Sterling, 37, renowned poet, found dead in his quarters at the Bohemian club today, died from swallowing cyanide of potassium, according to Detective Lt. Charles Dulcane.

"I don't know whether he killed himself or not," said Dulcane. "All I can say is that there is no question that he took poison, either intentionally or by accident, and that it caused his death."

Authorities ordered an examination of the body, following Dulcane's report.

Sterling, a San Francisco resident 40 years, had been ill for some days.

Monday, H. L. Mencken, writer and critic, arrived here to visit Sterling, a friend of years standing, and the poet was reported suffering a mild complaint, and was not able to greet Mencken at the train.

Sterling was born on Dec. 1, 1889, in Sag Harbor, N. Y. He was author of many celebrated poems, published for the most part as collections. Among his works dealing with California were two poems written in 1915, the year of the San Francisco exposition. One was titled "Yosemite," the other, "Exposition Ode."

Flood Waters In Maryland Recede

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 17.—Flood waters throughout Maryland ebbed today, as reports reached here of many bay craft sunk or beached, roads choked with water shutting off the historic city of Barbara Fritchie—Frederick—and hampering rail traffic at some points.

Heaviest rains in several decades were reported from outlying sections.

Four feet of water blocked roads into Frederick.

BROKER DIED IN ACCIDENT, LATE STORY

J. Mackelbride Claims Patterson Met Death on Being Struck by Auto

WOULD SAVE GOODWIN

Effort Made by Gaines to Revive Man With Heat, Says Purported Witness

SENSATIONAL new disclosures tending to absolve Philip A. Goodwin of blame for the death of Joseph J. Patterson, and representing that Patterson died as the result of an accident, in San Diego county, instead of being murdered in Orange county, were sprung today by the Goodwin defense, in the form of a letter received from a newly-discovered "witness" who claims to have witnessed the death of Patterson.

It was admitted that Goodwin's counsel, Kitt Gould, hopes to upset the recent conviction and death sentence of Goodwin and to take authority for prosecution of the case away from Orange county officials by transferring jurisdiction to San Diego county.

The new "witness," J. Mackelbride, who claims to be an acquaintance of Gaines, and who has set forth what purports to be a full and frank statement of the Patterson case for the purpose of saving Goodwin from the gallows, was scheduled to confer with the district attorney of San Diego county at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Mother to Join Conference
Mrs. C. A. Goodwin, mother of the condemned man, and Miss Rhoda Gould, daughter of the defense counsel, expected to take part in the conference, it was announced.

Joseph Patterson died as the result of head injuries received during what Mackelbride terms as a "drunken orgy," when Gaines accidentally started an automobile, in gear, while Patterson was leaning against the radiator of the car, Mackelbride asserts.

Mackelbride refers to Gaines as "Dewey."

"I don't see why Dewey don't tell what happened," Mackelbride's letter to Attorney Gould says. "He didn't mean to kill Patterson. The letter further states that Goodwin was not present and knows nothing about Patterson's manner of death."

Mackelbride asserts that he and Gaines and Patterson were together, near Camp Kearny, when the accident to Patterson occurred. Because of his own criminal record, Dewey was afraid to take Patterson to a hospital, fearing the consequences of Patterson's death, and so an attempt was made to revive Patterson, according to Mackelbride.

Mackelbride said that Patterson was dead when picked up but he humored Gaines' belief that Patterson was still alive and might be revived.

In Santa Ana Canyon
In Santa Ana canyon, Gaines tried to revive Patterson with heat, and accidentally spilled gasoline upon him. The gas became ignited and burned Patterson's clothing away, while Gaines fled, Mackelbride's letter declares.

Mackelbride also claims that Gaines had told him that he, Gaines, was a good forger, and had demonstrated his ability; that Gaines also told him he had secured stock from Patterson and had induced Goodwin to sell it for him.

Mackelbride's statement, not only absolved Goodwin from connection with Patterson's death, but was a blow at the contention of the prosecution, in the Goodwin case, that the price motive for murder was to obtain the Patterson stock.

Full Text of Letter
The letter, in full, follows:
Kitt Gould, attorney,
Santa Ana, Calif.

Dear Mr. Gould: I knew Joseph Patterson. He introduced me to Abe Dewey. I went to several places with Dewey, to Solomon's, the Rose Garden, and other dances. One time we went with a girl of his by name of Lillian Lee. At dances, Dewey always told the girls his name was Reader.

I stayed all night with Dewey several times, and one night, when he got pretty drunk, he told me he was a good forger, but he had been in San Quentin for forgering. He told me that if I could get some checks from the railway office, or the Pacific Electric company, that he had a printer friend in Ogden who could duplicate the checks and that he could forge them and on a pay day cash them. I told Dewey I wasn't so sure of his being a good forger, and he showed me a cancelled check of Patterson's in his room one night and took a pane of glass out of his dresser drawer, put a light under the glass and traced Patterson's name on a check to prove to me that

BATTLE TO SAVE 6 ENTOMBED IN MINE

HAZELTON, Pa., Nov. 17.—A rescue crew of more than 1000 men, under direction of trained miners, mechanical engineers and mine inspectors, today was battling to reach the six men, who have been entombed in the flooded Tom Hick coal colliery, of the Lehigh Valley Coal company, since yesterday.

The men were entombed when a small creek overflowed its banks and ran into the mine.

OFFICIALS AND TRAPPERS IN WAR; MARTIAL LAW LOOMS

(By United Press)
NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 17.—Possibility of martial law for De La Croix island, where yesterday one trapper was killed and 11 others injured in a battle with deputy sheriffs, appeared today.

Gov. O. H. Simpson is reported enroute to New Orleans from Baton Rouge, the capital, for a conference with St. Bernard parish officials.

there are 1000 trappers ready to oppose the officials, who are attempting to enforce the non-trespassing order. Many are said to be armed.

Blame for yesterday's shooting has not been placed. The trappers, in a small area, were enroute to land when the shooting started. The boat was sunk and they were forced to swim to shore amidst rifle fire. Both sides claim the other started the shooting.

Director Jullian also conducted an investigation and at the time, I believe, found enough evidence to give credence to the story. A gun was discovered, but I do not know if it was found in Griffin's cell or not."

John U. Calkins, San Francisco attorney, who was prosecuting attorney in Alameda county when Brennan was convicted and sentenced to San Quentin, told Gannon in a telephone message that he was much concerned about Brennan's escape.

Calkins reported that he was asked by Brennan at one time to visit him in San Quentin penitentiary. When he went to visit the convict, Brennan said to Calkins, "Calkins, some day I'm going to escape from here. When I do, I'm going to get you."

ANOTHER STORY OF PATTERSON DEATH RELATED

It was O. K. He said he had a preacher friend who he could get to cash it for him. A couple of days later, he told me that he had the preacher open an account for him with that check.

Says Check Went Through
If it went through, the forgery was O. K. and if it didn't he said he would tell the preacher to cancel it, and it went through all right. I met the preacher, Goodwin, one day when I was with Dewey and Patterson. When Patterson and Goodwin were introduced to each other, Patterson said, "I think we have met before." Dewey said that he didn't know that they had met. Patterson said, "Oh, we have traveled in the same direction, and we met in the east," and they laughed. Goodwin left to go to the hospital, or somewhere.

Patterson and Dewey and I were going to Tia Juana for the week end, and Dewey invited the preacher to go along. There was a little argument about taking the preacher along on a Tia Juana trip. Finally, Dewey said he would go with the preacher. So on Saturday, Patterson and I and a couple of girls from Tia Juana and a boy friend of one of the girls, by the name of Red Graves, or Griffith, I don't remember which, went down in Red's Ford. We passed Dewey and the preacher on the way down. Patterson and I met Dewey in San Diego. Red and the girls went on to Tia Juana.

Go to Dance at Night
That night, Dewey, Patterson and I went to a dance, and after the dance Patterson and Dewey stayed at a hotel and I stayed with a sailor buddy. I don't know where they stayed, but before we went to the dance we met the preacher on the street and he asked Dewey if he could depend upon him being back the next day to take him and his pal, that was at the hospital, for a ride. Dewey agreed to meet him Sunday, about 1 o'clock in the afternoon. Sunday morning, about 1 o'clock, Patterson and I met Red and we went to Tia Juana. Dewey said he had to keep his date with the preacher and his friend, and that he would meet us later in Tia Juana. About 6 p. m., Dewey met us at the Oakland bar in Tia Juana and we had a lot to drink. We stayed after that for about an hour and a half, and then Patterson, Dewey, and I left for San Diego. We were all pretty drunk, so Dewey said we ought to ride around to sober up and he didn't expect to meet his friend until later on.

We drove up out of San Diego and out towards Camp Kearny. Near Camp Kearny, Patterson had to get out a minute. Dewey stopped tensive four-day social program and proceeded to Indianapolis for a short stop over, enroute to the state.

In the most impressive talk she has made in this country, her majesty said that she is making this trip to give a "face" and a personality to her little kingdom. With a serious mien, she described the steadfast patriotism of her countrymen during the World war, and with tears in her eyes, cried:

Treading on Woman's Heart
"Those of you who belittle Rumania are treading on the heart of a woman."

"I am here to give a 'face' to Rumania. I want it to be something more personal than a place on the map, or a number in a list of statistics."

Then she added, with a gracious smile:

"Of course I hope that the 'face' will be as agreeable as possible to you."

Queen Marie swiftly traced the story of Rumania, told of Rumania's delight at having her—a granddaughter of Queen Victoria—be a sovereign.

She told of going to the peace conference in Paris, of giving Rumania a "face" there.

She told how Bolshevism had swept the neighboring Russia.

"Yet, mark you," she cried, "not one Rumanian surrendered his gun. Not one of my people went Bolshevik."

STORMS CAUSE 10 DEATHS IN EAST

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—A wind and rain storm, that swept the northeastern states yesterday, caused 10 deaths, more than 50 injured and left a trail of property damage, reports from the dozen states affected showed today.

In the New England states, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and West Virginia, towns and mines were flooded, trees, walls and wires blown down, autos wrecked and shipping endangered.

The deaths occurred in New England, where four were reported, New York, two, and Pennsylvania, four, due to traffic accidents on slippery Philadelphia streets.

Heavy damage was done in Pennsylvania and northern West Virginia. Scores of miners were driven from their homes by flood waters. Six men were entombed in a flooded mine near Hazelton, Pa., and had not been rescued today. A dam gave way above Forksville, Pa., and the town was inundated, houses and bridges being swept away.

Heavy damage to late crops was reported in all the sections affected.

fire protection district in Garden Grove, hearing on the proposal being set by the supervisors for December 7, at 10 a. m.

A delegation of Garden Grove citizens, headed by J. M. Woodworth and represented by George K. Scovel, of Brea, Ruttan and Scovel, Santa Ana firm, presented a petition to the board, asking for formation of the district.

In addressing the board, Woodworth stated that the territory which it is proposed to include in the district, covers virtually the entire town of Garden Grove and represents an assessed valuation of about $450,000.

It is estimated, he said, that a tax of 30 cents per $1000 valuation, which would raise $1350 on a $450,- 000 valuation, will be sufficient to meet the needs of the district, which contemplates purchase of fire fighting equipment.

Whether the proposal to form the fire district will be submitted to a vote of Garden Grove citizens depends on whether any written objections to the district are filed with the board at the date of hearing, December 7, according to Attorney Scovel. If no written protests are filed, the supervisors can form the district, he said.

2 ARE JAILED ON LIQUOR CHARGES

Charged with possession of intoxicating liquor, Frank Purse, 35, Fullerton cook, and Joseph Domo, 43, pool room operator, at 114 Spadra street, Fullerton, were arrested by Brea officers last night.
They were lodged in the county jail by Deputy Sheriff Dan Adams,
O. Moncrief and Joe Irvine.

The men were arrested after an automobile, which they were said to have been riding in and which was claimed by officers to have contained two gallons of wine and one gallon of hard cider, was captured.

The arrests were made early last night. The men probably will be given hearings in Brea today.

$4093.50 TOTAL OF COLLECTION ON FIRST DAY

Community chest contributions and subscriptions aggregating $1,- 093.50 were reported at noon today, at the first general report meeting of the 10-day drive, which started yesterday. The meeting was held in the American Legion hall and attended by close to 300 chest workers. These subscriptions, with pre-campaign contributions, bring the total to $10,713.50.

The division honors of the day went to the northeast division, commanded by H. G. Nelson. Team No.
6, commanded by Captain Marcher, was high, with a total of $1047.50.

The meeting was one of the most enthusiastic ever held in any similar undertaking in Santa Ana and augured well for the success of the undertaking. Such was the enthusiasm that it approached the stage of a college rally when the various divisions and teams began reporting their totals.

Many Kiwanians Present
An outstanding feature of the meeting was the large attendance of Kiwanis club members, many of whom rallied to the banner of Captain Whiston. Sharing honors with the Kiwanians in the matter of attendance was the Santa Ana Lions club, which organization, it was said, has the largest number of active workers in the campaign.

The program was in charge of William H. Spurgeon Jr., president of the chest organization. A. G.
Tucker led the community singing and E. M. (Sunny) Sundquist furnished the music. The speakers at the luncheon meeting were Roland
E. Dye, director of the campaign, and the Rev. Charles F. Seitter, pastor of the First M. E. church.

"You have introduced into this community a spiritual force no man can measure," said the Rev. Mr.
Seitter. "This campaign is a civic revival, an awakening of the community spirit, a realization of individual responsibility for the well being of society."

Campaign director Dye asked that families in position to contribute to the chest co-operate with the chest workers to this extent that in event the husband is away from the home, the wife be authorized to enter the subscription. Such an arrangement, Dye explained, would save time and duplication of effort.

Bancitaly Would Increase Capital

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 17.—
Stockholders of the Bancitaly corporation, at a special meeting December 7, in New York, will consider a proposal to increase the institution's capital stock to $100,- 000,000, it was announced here.

"The entire capital of the corporation, consisting of 2,000,000 shares, each of $25 par value, has been paid in," said A. P. Giannini, president, "and the board of directors believes it advisable now to provide for this increase."

Says Son Ran Off With Sister-in-law

A woman early today called police headquarters and asked for an officer, "right now."

An officer was dispatched.
When he arrived at the house, he found a woman in bed, weeping. She informed him that she was the mother of two sons, both grown, and one of them had run away with the other's wife.

She wanted the police to find the erring son and brother and notify him that the other was searching for him.

ALBERT GAINES WILL BATTLE CASE TO FINISH

Albert Dewey Gaines will not waive his preliminary examination and intends to fight the prosecution every inch of the way in its attempt to convict him of murdering Joseph J. Patterson.

This much was indicated today,
when Gaines' case came before Justice Kenneth E. Morrison for preliminary hearing. The hearing was postponed until this afternoon, when it will be reset for a later date, due to a misunderstanding of the original date on the part of Gaines' counsel, George Halvorson.

The district attorney's office conferred with Gaines yesterday regarding a proposal that he waive his preliminary examination and thus hasten his trial. The prosecution felt confident that, with admission Gaines already has made regarding the death of Paterson, the preliminary hearing would be nothing more than a formality and that Gaines could not escape being held for trial.

Today's announcement, however, indicates that Gaines and Halvorson may have different ideas about it and that they intend to contest every step of the prosecution.

Selection of a new date for the preliminary hearing may delay it until the present district attorney's staff is succeeded, January 3, by District Attorney-elect Z.
B. West and his aides.

CONTRACTORS ASK $1224.09 JUDGMENT

The contracting firm of Allen and Bird, Santa Ana, today had a suit on file in superior court against Helen F. Fowler and Edwin Fowler, asking judgment for $1224.09 and foreclosure of a mechanic's lien of that amount against property of the Fowlers.

The plaintiffs allege that they were employed to build a house for the defendants at a price of $4803 and that the plans were enlarged to include an extra bedroom, at a cost of $3673.09, making a total cost of $8476.09. The Fowlers paid them but $7252 and still owe $1224.09, the contractors claim.

STATE POLICE NAME JERNIGAN VICE PRESIDENT

Sam Jernigan, sheriff of Orange county, returned here early today from the California Peace Officers' convention, in Bakersfield, the newly-elected first vice president of the organization.

Jernigan's election came as a complete surprise to him, the sheriff not having been notified that he would be named a candidate, he said today.

It is customary with the organization to advance officers each year, which means that Jernigan next year probably will head peace officers of the state.

William T. Stanford, Vallejo police chief, was elected president.
Other officers named were:
C. W. Potter, Stockton, second vice president; James Holohan, Santa Cruz county sheriff, third vice president; Court Smith, Virsalia chief, fourth vice president;
Duncan Matheson, San Francisco
captain, secretary and treasurer, and Bill Murray, Los Angeles captain, sergeant-at-arms.

Sheriff William Traeger, Los Angeles county, is the retiring president. He presided over the convention, which closed last night.

More than 300 peace officers from all parts of the state attended the sessions. Fifteen sheriffs were present, Jernigan reported.

Talks were made before the convention by some of the best known criminologists in the country. Discussions on crime prevention featured each day's program. Proposed changes in state laws also were taken up.

The next convention will be held in Sacramento.

tracted During the War."

The Santa Ana debating team is composed of David Roberts and Miss Gertrude Bates. It has the affirmative side of the question.

C. C. Stewart, debating coach, and Terry Stephenson Jr., commissioner of forensics, expect a large attendance at tonight's debate, which will be open to the public.

ELKS PREPARE TO CLOTHE AND FEED S. A. POOR

A bundle of old clothes will be the price of admission to the dance and card party to be given by Santa Ana lodge, No. 794, B. P. O. E., Tuesday night, December 7, it was announced today by William Mc-Kay, exalted ruler.

Stating that attendance would be limited to members and visiting Elks and their families, McKay said that the charge of a bundle of old clothes would be made for the purpose of collecting a large amount of clothing for distribution to the needy in the Christmas season.

The lodge will clean and, as far as possible, repair the garments before they are distributed. It was admitted that the fee for the dance is rather a novel method of accumulating a stock of clothing, but it was the opinion of McKay that the result would be the gathering of a lot of good clothes for men, women and children of the city who may need garments to protect them from the cold of winter.

Incidentally it was stated by the exalted ruler that the 900 or more members of the lodge will make cash donations to a Christmas charity fund, which will be used in preparing baskets of Christmas edibles. In past years the lodge has created this fund by giving some kind of a public entertainment, but experience has confirmed the opinion of officers that it would cost the individual members less to make voluntary contributions than to purchase tickets for an entertainment were the greater part of the proceeds are given to an outsider for development of the show.

Solons to Adopt New Method for Printing Bills

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 17.—Adoption by the California legislature of the methods used by congress for printing bills and amended bills was announced by the state board of control.

The new system, which will go into effect at the 127th session of the legislature, has the approval of Gov. elect C. C. Young.

Use of cancelled type, necessitating specially cut linotype matrices, will be the feature of the change. This will show the changes, deletions and additions to the bills when amended. Italic type will be used to show substitution of new matter. Legislators will be able to determine the exact changes in every bill considered.

MUCH EXPENSE IS ELIMINATED BY CHEST PLAN

By HARRY D. RILEY, President, Crippled Children's Relief Association of Orange County

The community chest plan, wherever adopted, has eliminated the great waste in overhead that came from separate campaigns for this and that organization, all of them worthy undertakings, with their committees, their meetings, their appeals and their expenditures of mental and physical energy.

Another phase of the community chest idea to be borne in mind is that it frees hospital superintendents, orphanage matrons, nurses engaged in relief work and social welfare workers from the gift-plying tasks for which they neither are trained nor fitted. With the assurance that they will have sufficient funds to operate with, these trained workers will be in a position to give their undivided attention to the problems before them. This will be true in the case of the Crippled Children's Relief association, and, I venture to add, with all other participating agencies.

The fact should not be lost sight of that the service rendered by the community chest to the public has not been purely financial, although its achievements along this line is one for which the organizers and supporters should have the thanks of the community. The community chest has spread the idea of co-operating for the common good into fields in which it was needed as much as in the realm of giving and spending. The very fact that today eight relief and social welfare organizations are federated for income purposes has meant the growth of a friendship and an understanding which no amount of money could measure. It has eliminated possible jealousies and done away with unwarranted and harmful criticism, which, instead of helping, serve to defeat the very thing for which these organizations were brought into being.

SPAN WILL NOT BE COMPLETED UNTIL MARCH

Flood waters will be rushing down the Santa Ana river before the state highway bridge being erected on West Chapman street is completed—that is, if rains this winter come in sufficient volume to force the flow to the point of the bridge.

According to Charles J. Steffen, superintendent of construction, it will be the latter part of February before the bridge is completed and opened to traffic.

It was pointed out today that there have been very few times in recent years when the flow of the stream reached as far down as the bridge, but it also was pointed out that prediction cannot definitely be made as to whether this is to be a wet or dry winter.

Provide for Flow

The superintendent stated today that the contracting firm of Charles and F. W. Steffen, father and brother of the superintendent, contemplated making provision for the water to pass under the east section of the bridge. This section will be completed within the next week or 10 days, so far as concerns the pouring of concrete. Diversion of the water from the west side of the channel to the east will be made by construction of a small levy, extending from the west end of the completed section to the west bank of the river.

Large sections of concrete from the old bridge have been deposited in the river bed on the north side of the bridge. In the opinion of Steffen, these will not retard the flow of water. He said that the water would work the sand from under the pieces and that they would be buried.

Commenting on the date at which it appears the new structure will be completed, the superintendent said that the contracting firm was delayed at least 45 days in starting work because of the construction of the detour around the bridge. He asserted that had traffic been diverted to other routes while the detour was being made, the bridge today would be nearing the completion stage.

Record-Time Made

"We have made record time on the east section of the structure," the superintendent said, in pointing out that in two weeks 140,000 feet of lumber were worked into forms for the concrete, that steel was laid within six days and that pouring of concrete will have been completed within 10 days from the time it was started. The partially finished section will include a sidewalk on each side of the structure.

The contracting firm will ask the highway commission for an extension of time for completing the bridge, the superintendent said. Considerable apprehension is felt as to the possibility of damage to the fair grounds and the county hospital, should flood water break over the west bank of the river because of the bridge work interfering with the flow of the stream.

The bridge is to be approximately 550 feet long. Of this 303 feet are under construction and pouring of concrete will be completed within the next week or 10 days, when the forms will be moved for use on the remaining section on the west.

Thieves attempted to enter the home of Dr. J. M. Bulpitt, 124 Buffalo street yesterday, while members of the family were away, according to a report filed with the police. Two screens at the rear of the home were found cut, but it was not believed that an entrance was effected.

Housewife Becomes New Woman

"All of our best doctors had given me up. I was unable to leave my bed for 18 weeks and was yellow as a pumpkin, besides the terrible stomach pains I suffered. Our druggist advised my husband to try M-J-B and it has saved my life. I am a new woman now." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At all druggists.—Adv.

ACTUAL kitchen-laboratory tests have proved beyond question that M-J-B has more body, more strength, more coffee substance. It's concentrated—that's why! But we would like you to prove this in your own kitchen. We would like you to see for yourself how you can use less of M-J-B to the spoonful and still enjoy a fine, full-bodied cup of coffee. Then—

Consider that the average family uses 40 cups of coffee per week and you begin to see the real coffee saving you get in M-J-B.

Of all things most desired what would it be? Sterling silver, we think. Because it is so beautiful—so useful. Yes! Because it lasts forever? Again yes! But most of all because sterling is so genuine—so really fine a thing.

Late Dreiser Book Reviewed Before Ebell Section

Book review section members of Ebell society showed their interest in yesterday's program and hostesses by appearing almost 100 per cent strong at the afternoon meeting held at the home of Miss Rosa Boyd on North Main street, to hear Mrs. North Northcross review Theodore Dreiser's "An American Tragedy."

Arriving guests were greeted by Miss Boyd, Mrs. Ralph Smalley and Mrs. Terry E. Stephenson, hostesses and Mrs. Edward M. Nealley, leader. The afternoon which followed was one of the most interesting ones ever shared by the section members.

Mrs. Northcross prefaced her review of "An American Tragedy" with a brief sketch of Theodore Dreiser and his earlier contributions to present day literature. The plot of the book was then sketched in with swift, sure touches, and occasional passages were read aloud.

The leading figure in the tragedy, Clyde Griffiths, was made very plain to her listeners by Mrs. Northcross, who summed up the circumstances of his birth and training, all of which had their effect on his character development. She spoke of Dreiser's power to arouse pity for Clyde and understanding and sympathy for his weaknesses of character which brought him to such straits.

She read several paragraphs especially those relating to the loneliness that brought Clyde and Roberta together, and some of their later conversations which were among the more beautifully written passages of the book. Some of the characters, she criticized as being poorly drawn and not at all convincing, others she cited for their strength and human attributes, especially Clyde's mother, well portrayed and convincing.

Dreiser's style, she critized as ponderous and halting, his paragraphs long and so involved that sometimes his meaning was obscure. When she had concluded her review, those who had read the two lengthy volumes, were given a new insight into the literary work, its plot, theme and construction; and those who had not read it, were given such a clear picture that they felt a familiarity little short of that attained by an actual reading.

The next meeting of the section will be for the purpose of hearing Miss Jennie Lasby discuss Janet Scudder and her book, "Modeling My Life."

Chairman of Music Attends Luncheon

Just prior to her numerous engagements in connection with the Southern District Federation convention now in session in Fullerton, Mrs. Herbert M. Sammis, district chairman of music and member of the board of the California Federation of Music clubs, of which she is Orange county vice president, was among the members present at a peasant luncheon in Pasadena with Lou Alice Keller.

The meeting was called by Abbie Norton Jamison, president of the music federation, and many interesting matters were discussed. Among them were two contests to come in February, the Young Students' contest and the Young Artists' contest, both held under the auspices of the federation. A concerted effort will be made to arouse social interest among teachers who have pupils eligible to enter the competitions.

Tomorrow's program of District Convention At Fullerton

Orange county clubwomen, enthusiastic over yesterday and today's successful sessions of the Southern District Federation convention now in session at Fullerton, were equally interested in plans for tomorrow's features, which will conclude the formal programmed events, in preparation for a final day to be spent in showing the county's various points of interest to visiting delegates and guests.

Thursday morning's session will open at 9 o'clock with the parliamentary council for club presidents, led by Mrs. Annie Little Barry, state parliamentarian. At 10 o'clock, the formal meeting will be called to order by the district president, Mrs. E. E. Knight. A number of brief talks will be given, among them one on endowment by Mrs. Flora Pyle of this city. One of the speakers will be Mrs. Sidney Thomas Exley, chairman of the board of trustees, California Federation. Music, reports and other matters of general interest will be featured and Mrs. J. H. Bohlander, district chairman of publicity, will speak.

Since the departments of conservation of natural resources, highways and waterways, birds and wild life, will be featured in the reports, the address by Francis Cuttle on "Reforestation, the Hope of America," will be of special interest. Mr. Cuttle is a member of the state forestry board and president of the tri-counties reforestation committee.

A conservation luncheon will follow, held like the sessions, in the First Christian church of Fullerton. All district, county and club conservation chairmen are urged to attend this affair and are welcome. Mr. Cuttle will be honored guest and a discussion will be held on tree planting and memorial highways.

Mrs. Alex P. Nelson of this city, president of the county federation and hence one of the principal hostesses, will assist Mrs. Knight in presiding on this final afternoon. The program will be a general one, dealing with applied and project education, California history and landmarks, motion pictures, radio, reciprocity bureaus and other subjects of varied features, all of which will be discussed.

Theodore F. Graham will deliver the address on "Making America American" and it will be followed by the report of Orange county clubs given by Mrs. Nelson.

Invitation will be extended at this session for the next convention, an item of interest to all club members. Also the new officers will be installed.

The annual banquet will be held tomorrow night at 6:30 o'clock, at the Masonic temple with Mrs. E. E. Tabor as chairman, and Mrs. George W. Hunt as toastmistress. Entertainment will follow in the form of an illustrated travelogue, "Southern Italy," presented by Frederick White.

Friday's program will include breakfast in Santa Ana at Ebell society guests at the clubhouse; a trip to Laguna and its galleries and studios and a visit to the mission San Juan Capistrano.

Alumnus Attends University Dinner

Mrs. H. Clay Kellogg and her daughter, Miss Helen Kellogg, were in Los Angeles Monday night where they attended the North Dakota University alumni dinner at the University club on South Hope street, given to compliment Major General Farnsworth and Dean Vernon P. Squires.

Over 100 alumni were present to greet the distinguished guests. Mrs. Kellogg, who is a life member of the alumni association, graduated with the second class of the university, consisting of six boys and two girls, all of whom are successful men and women of today. Mrs. Kellogg was the sole member of her class present and her tales of earlier days at the university were much appreciated.

Also her later knowledge was of interest since she and Miss Kellogg were at Grand Forks, North Dakota last June for the commencement exercises at her alma mater. While there, she and her daughter were domiciled in Davis hall, the same dormitory which had sheltered her girlhood days.

Major General Farnsworth, honor guest at Monday night's reunion, was military instructor during her college years, and Mrs. Flora Smith King, toast mistress at the banquet, was physical instructor. On December 9, the North Dakota alumni will hold a ball at the Alvarado hotel, Los Angeles.

The meeting was called to order at 1:30, followed by a salute to the flag led by Mrs. D. G. Clayton. The Rev. Graham Hunter delivered the invocation. A welcome to the visitors was extended by Mrs. A. P. Nelson, county president and convention board chairman.

Mayor H. H. Crooke welcomed the visitors in behalf of the city of Fullerton. He said that great responsibilities rest on the shoulders of the women of this nation and that they represent the balance of power politically. He said that the women's clubs of this county are proving of inestimable worth. He closed his brief address by wishing success to the convention and that each individual would enjoy her stay in Fullerton.

Greetings from State Board
Mrs. Henry Goodsell, state vice president-at-large, brought greetings to the convention from the State Board C. F. W. C. She urged her listeners to gain everything possible from the convention. "Go back to your homes and clubs better able to help for having been in this convention," she said.

The response for the southern district was given by Mrs. E. F. Taber, vice president. The principal address of the afternoon was the president's message, by Mrs. E. E. Knight. Her report dealt largely with club work, what it is accomplishing and what it strived to do for the women of this country. She concluded as follows:

"May we so build our clubs that our larger visions and deeper

PUBLICITY MEN OUTLINE PLANS FOR PORT VOTE

Plans for a publicity campaign for the harbor entrance bond election, to be held December 14, were decided upon last night at the meeting of the publicity committee, at the rooms of the chamber of commerce. Harry Welch, secretary of the Orange County Harbor Chamber of Commerce, presided.

Indications were that the publicity campaign is to be more extensive and even more effective than the campaign incident to the election in June of this year. Windshield stickers, posters, fire cards and other means will be utilized to the utmost to advertise the election and get out the vote.

Herman Reuter, of the Fullerton Tribune; Vernon King, of the Garden Grove News; E. E. Anderson, of Brea; Robert Wilson, of the Anaheim Booster, and Justus Cremer, of the Orange News, were named members of a special publicity committee to make decisions for the general publicity between the regular meetings of the general committee. The committee will select its own chairman.

E. Merle Hussong, of the Santa Ana Register, was named to arrange for three short radio speeches over stations at Long Beach, Los Angeles and Hollywood.

LICENSE PLATE EXHIBIT SOUGHT BY MOTOR COPS

Display to Represent All European Countries and Every State in America

The Orange county state traffic office, located in the main office of the courthouse, expects to have an exhibit, the like of which never has been seen in the United States. The exhibit will be made up of automobile license plates of every state in the United States and every country in the world.

Mrs. Jessica Clement, of the motor vehicle office, today is mailing letters to all foreign countries, requesting motor plates. Letters to all states in the union already have been mailed and answers are expected within the next few days. The display will carry more than 100 different kinds of plates of all sizes.

The display is the idea of Walter P. Greer, state supervisor, who has his headquarters in Santa Ana. He said today that the display will be for the purpose of showing how the California plates are better than those of foreign countries.

125 AT FATHER AND SON DINNER

One hundred and twenty-five persons were present at the annual father and son banquet, held last night in the First United Presbyterian church parlors. The women of the church served dinner.

A. J. McFadden acted as toast master and community singing was led by T. Harry Warner. Ray Millman gave a whistling solo. W. S. Kennedy delivered a toast from the fathers to the sons and Archie Raitt responded for the sons. An address was given by "Tex" Oliver, coach of the Santa Ana high school football team.

A violin solo, by Leon Eckles, and a vocal solo, by Edward M. Allen, brought the program to a close.

40 COATS LEFT BY MEN FIGHTING FIRE

Forty coats, left by fire-fighters who were taken into the Santa Ana mountains during the fire that swept 13,000 acres of brush, have been brought to Santa Ana by forest rangers.

Any fire-fighter who became separated from his coat and failed to get it back can look over the collection brought from the mountains. The coats are at Victor Walker's sporting goods store.

Rangers have been along the edge of the burned area picking up axes, shovels, canteens, blankets and coats, abandoned by fire-fighters. Most of these were in temporary camps on the upper ridges.

WOMEN PREFER MALE BARBERS. SURVEY PROVES

Women prefer male barbers in beauty shops where one ordinarily would expect to find only women barbers.

Men barbers prefer to work on men because men know what they want.

Women change their minds too often while in the chair and rarely know just what style of hair cut they want.

These are the deductions made as the result of a survey of Santa Ana tonsorial parlors and beauty shops, the survey being instigated by the city editor, who made the remark that women want men to cut their hair—and the city editor was right.

Women are vain creatures, according to the manager of one Santa Ana beauty parlor, and hate nothing more than appearing at a disadvantage before other women.

So they demand a private place to have their hair cut and they prefer a man because he is not so critical as a woman.

One of Santa Ana's best known barbers said that as a rule it is easier to care for a man's hair than a woman's, "although," he added, "some of the boy flappers that come to me are as hard to please as any woman possibly could be."

This barber said that a woman's greatest trouble was in being unable to make up her mind as to the kind of bob she desires. This is because women always want to experiment with new things, while men are satisfied to continue in the same path, he said.

Doesn't Mind It
Another barber declared that the reason he cuts women's hair only is because he doesn't have to bother shaving them. "I quit working on men largely because I did not like to shave other persons," he said. He believes that men prefer to work on men because they understand them and know what the various customers expect, while a woman never is sure herself what she wants. "But if a barber is stubborn enough he can get along cutting women's hair."

Another trouble with women when they are having their hair cut is that they want to have their locks shorn exactly as their best friend has hers. "It's funny," this barber said, "that women should spend dollars and dollars trying to purchase clothes that are different and yet will rage when she is told that her hair cannot be cut like that of someone else."

MOTOR VEHICLE SERVICE OFFICE TO OPEN HERE

Mrs. Zelma Noyes, General Supervisor for Department, To Be in Charge

Mrs. Zelma Noyes, for 11 years general supervisor in the main office of the state motor vehicle department and for the last three years, manager of the San Francisco office, will open a motor vehicle registration service office in Santa Ana next Monday morning, according to an announcement made today.

The office will handle all kinds of motor vehicle licenses and will make a specialty of cars brought into this state from eastern states. Deliveries of new license plates and drivers', chauffeurs' and other licenses will be made the day after ordering.

The new office will be located at 114 West Third street and the place now is being remodeled for the new business.

Santa Ana never has had an office of this nature and its opening is expected to do away with much of the trouble experienced by the Orange county public in securing registrations and other papers necessary for drivers.

SUGAR COMPANY SUIT DEFENDANT

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Guyon, of Anaheim, have filed suit in superior court against the Anaheim Sugar company, demanding $7500 damages on account of injury alleged to have been done to two lots that the Guyons purchased from the sugar company, in 1924.

When the lots were purchased, the complaint states, the sugar company maintained a drainage ditch which carried away certain refuse and was beneficial to the nearby lots. Subsequently, however, the ditch was enlarged, it is alleged, and was flooded with waste materials not previously carried in it. The ditch overflowed on the lots and caused extensive damage, it is claimed.

Attorneys R. E. Haynes and A. N. Solis, of Fullerton, are counsel for the Guyons.

WOMAN HURT WHEN HIT BY AUTOMOBILE

Mrs. Ida L. Austream, 743 Hartford avenue, Los Angeles, was injured at 6:50 p. m., yesterday, when she was run down by an automobile driven by B. L. Clapp, 46, 221 South Sycamore street, on North Main street, between Third and Fourth streets.

Clapp reported the accident at the police station. He said that the woman ran out in front of his machine before he could stop the car.

She was taken to a drug store and given medical treatment, later returning to her home.

Clapp reported that he was driving five miles an hour at the time of the accident, traveling south on Main street.

Reckless Driver Draws Heavy Fine

Frank Wilkinson, 45, 209 West Sixth street, Wilmar, was fined $250 in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court yesterday on a charge of reckless driving.

The man originally was charged with driving an automobile while intoxicated, after the machine, which he is alleged to have been driving, collided with a truck on the detour near the Orange County hospital, Monday night.

The arrest was made by Aldrich and Smith, deputy sheriffs.

Five Reasons for Support of Chest Given Downing

By Clyde C. Downing, President, Greater Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce.

Five salient reasons why I am supporting the "community chest": First: Because the rehabilitation of one boy or one girl is of far greater value than the whole of the campaign.

Second: Because it is good business to have under one well organized body of unselfish and progressive business and professional men all charitable and benevolent needs of our community.

Third: Because it saves time to the worker and donor to have only one campaign a year.

Fourth: Because it stamps our community as being unselfish in benevolence and charity.

Fifth: Because misfortune is no respecter of persons. Today one might be in possession of all his faculties, enjoying good health with the comforts of life and some of the luxuries and able to do his share in the community life of his city. Tomorrow, however, misfortune could step in and make a wreck of oneself and all of his possessions. What a sense of satisfaction there is to know that you have done your share in community service and, with a sense of the greatest independence, you can avail yourself of some one agency fostered by the community chest.

By backing the community chest, among other things, you are insuring the citizens of your city against misfortune.

HUMANITARIAN WORK OF RED CROSS IS TOLD

By CARRIE N. LEEBRICK, Secretary, Santa Ana Chapter, American Red Cross

Prior to the World war, the majority of Red Cross activities had been centered in the relief of human suffering and since that time this work has been carried on without abatement and still is actively supplementing the action of the government in times of emergency or in meeting conditions that can be taken care of by local agencies better than by governmental service.

This is the work that is principally engaging the Santa Ana chapter. As an instance of this, this chapter has proven its readiness to do its share in relief in any disaster as was demonstrated recently in the response to the call for assistance to the Florida storm sufferers, $387.13 having been sent from Santa Ana. Another instance of co-operation recently has demonstrated the willingness of the Santa Ana chapter to do its bit, when a demand was made upon them for 140 articles for two government hospitals, in San Diego, and Whipple barracks for Christmas presents for disabled veterans. The chapter provided the materials and, with the splendid assistance from some of the churches, the Legion auxiliary, and women's clubs, we are about ready to make the shipment. Added to this, 25 Christmas bags already have been shipped to foreign hospitals, carrying the spirit of cheer and good will.

The local work consists, in co-operation with other chapters throughout the United States, in making investigations that will assist in summing up cases that often result in release of soldiers or sailors needed in their homes; or giving authentic information that can only be had by personal contact, or in employment or making loans needed for short periods.

Owing to the fact that much of our work is given in service, the demand for funds made upon the community chest is nominal, but none the less necessary. The public always has been behind this work and appreciation of the support given it is demonstrated by the willingness of its officers to give of their time and service to carry on this work for humanity's sake.

Approval of the community chest idea is contained in the following statement by Alex Brownridge, banker and president of the Santa Ana board of education. Record to be Proud of
"I am convinced that the community chest methods is the logical way to finance social welfare organizations. Great economy of time, effort and expense is obtained by substituting one campaign for the agencies included in this year's chest. There is a like saving in the administration of funds disbursed and last year the cost of operating the Community Chest of Santa Ana and Tustin was only three per cent, which is, I believe, the lowest in the whole nation, as the average cost over the United States is between six and seven per cent. I believe we have reason to be proud of this record, which could not be duplicated with each

Eight Social Welfare and Relief Organizations Depend on Drive for Funds

$43,850 OBJECTIVE OF 1926 CAMPAIGN

Expense of Administration Here Far Below That of Any Other City on Coast

With not less than eight social welfare and relief organizations depending upon it for support, the Community Chest of Santa Ana and Tustin awaits the golden result of the third annual drive for funds. The public campaign opened yesterday, when more than 200 enthusiastic chest workers took the field in an effort to reach the goal of the campaign, $43,850.

If the chest is filled—and since organized three years ago, it has not asked in vain—it will contain the amount set forth in the objective, to total to a cent what a careful and painstaking budget committee figures will supply the needs of the eight agencies that make up the chest membership.

Economically Operated
The Community Chest of Santa Ana and Tustin is not only one of the best organized but the most economically operated chest on the Pacific coast, if not in the entire country, its administration expenses falling below three per cent of collections, chest officers point out. Other chests average about six per cent, it was said.

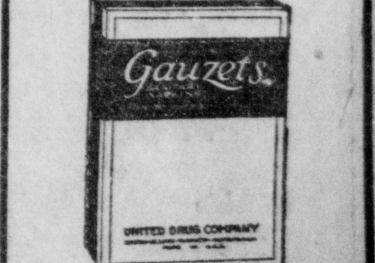

The chest organization has worked as a financial clearing agency, gathering money from the public and disbursing it to its member societies. The end of its first two years of existence finds the chest with certain definite accomplishments in the work of community giving, for which it was organized. Operating as a financial agent, it has collected close to $75,000 exclusive of this year's budget. Always it has worked for economy and efficiency and it has cut the cost of collecting and administering its funds from the average six cents to three cents on each dollar, the lowest on record in any community chest undertaking.

Approval of the community chest idea is contained in the following statement by Alex Brownridge, banker and president of the Santa Ana board of education.

ANNULMENT SOUGHT BY ANAHEIM WOMAN

Regardless of what may be considered the prime of life, Mrs. Marie L. Kyle, who married William J. Kyle after he told her he was 45 years old and physically sound, felt that she was cheated when she discovered that he was 61 and a stranger to health.

Her suit for annulment of the marriage was on file today in superior court.

Kyle also had told her he owned his home, but this, too, was false, she alleged. The wife claims she was forced to support herself and husband from the profits of her real estate business.

The Kyles were married July 2, 1925, at San Diego. After their marriage, Mrs. Kyle learned, she said, that her husband had suffered a stroke of paralysis in 1922.

Attorneys Bishop and Wellington represent Mrs. Kyle.

devotions may resolve themselves into an enthusiastic zeal for that broad culture which comes only through a service of love and unselfishness toward others. All who give service are torch-bearers, and the flaming torch of our great federation bids us carry on for better homes and a better and finer world in which to live.

Day of Entertainment.
Mrs. Albert Laumer, Fullerton, briefly told of the plan made for "play day," on Friday. She said that breakfast will be served at the Ebell clubhouse, in Santa Ana, and from there the women will go to Huntington Beach, Costa Mesa and then to Laguna, where luncheon will be served. Included in the trip will be the mission at San Juan Capistrano, and then to Orange and back to Fullerton. She also told of the tea on Wednesday afternoon at the Placencia Round Table clubhouse.

Mrs. Marmaduke Eckles, San Diego county president, introduced 10 presidents of various clubs. She told of the work being done by the clubs which she represented.

Miss Josephine Seaman, who is in charge of the federation extension work in this district, spoke of activities in this line. She said that federation extension work in many instances was better illustrated in the smaller clubs. She referred to the progress made in this respect by certain of the San Diego clubs.

On Business Relations.
Mrs. C. S. Lamson spoke on the department of international relations. She said that the Orange county clubs had taken a great interest in this department and that San Bernardino county also had shown considerable interest. She stated that the name of this department appeared to be against work in this line and asked if it would not perhaps be better to designate this work as "World Friendship." "No nation in history has made the progress in 500 years that Turkey has in 10 years," said Mrs. Lamson.

Before the afternoon session was completed, a number of baskets of flowers were presented to different officers. The convention as a whole received flowers from the Fullerton Kiwanis club. Corsage bouquets from the women of San Diego county were presented to Mesdames Knight, Tabor and Eckles. Baskets of flowers from the women of Orange county were presented to Mesdames Knight and Nelson. An informal reception and program was held for the women during the evening at the Ebell clubhouse with Mrs. A. P. Nelson presiding and Madame Manuela V. Budrow taking charge of the program.

DELAY ACTION ON WATER PERMIT

FULLERTON, Nov. 17.—In a further discussion of the application made by the Bastanchury ranch company for a franchise to lay a water main across the city streets of Fullerton, Mayor Crooke expressed the belief that litigation would result whether or not the franchise was given.

After hearing another petition protesting against the issuing of the permit, signed by more than 40 citizens in the east part of the city, the matter was thrown open for discussion and it was finally decided to defer the matter until a special meeting next Tuesday.

The Bastanchury Ranch company was represented by Attorney Sam Collins. Those opposing the permit were represented at last night's meeting by W. H. Hale and W. F. Coulter, prominent orange growers.

Mayor Crooke stated that he believed the trustees were confronted only with the question whether or not the permit should be given to the Bastanchury company.

City Engineer Record was given specific instructions to take the proper steps to compel the Bastanchury Ranch company to take proper care of water which has been flooding the city streets in certain sections.

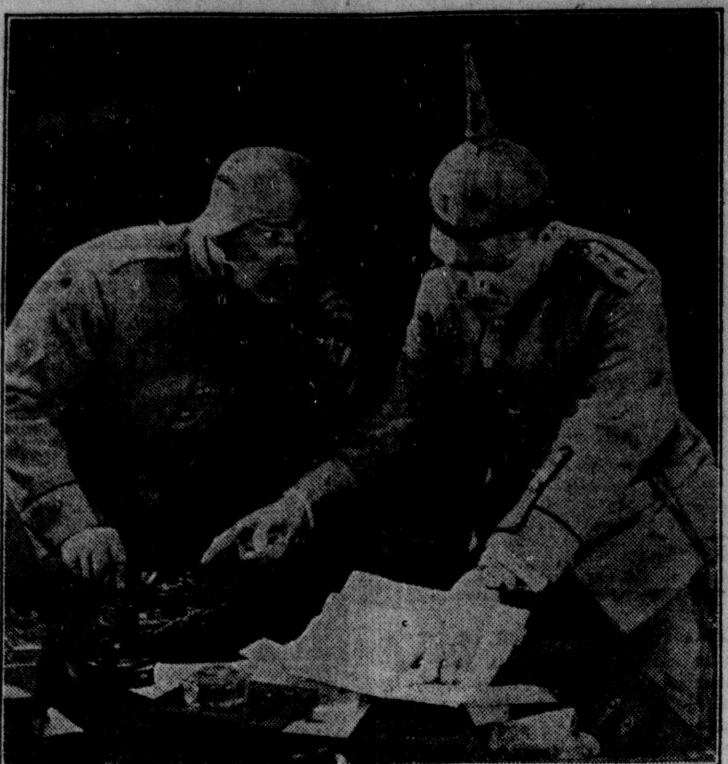

An application from the Union Oil company for use of the Fullerton outfall sewer line was presented to the trustees by the city engineer. The matter was discussed but no action was taken.

Representatives of the American Legion and the Spanish War Veterans appeared before the trustees and requested that the city refuse to issue permits for street decorations where the American flag was used, and where the proper flag etiquette was not observed. The city engineer was given instructions by the trustees to see that this matter was properly observed in the future.

AT THE THEATERS

A scene from "The Lost Battalion," current attraction at the West Coast-Walker theater.

Joseph Schildkraut and Bessie Love in a scene from "Young April," picture opening tonight at the Yost Broadway theater.

MURPHY'S COMEDIANS

One of the latest comedy-drama successes and beyond a doubt one of the best stage plays, from the pen of a playwright of national fame, is presented in Orange county this season in "Other People's Business," playing this week at Murphy's theater at Orana.

"Other People's Business," was written by Charles Harrison, author of more than 20 successes and is simply full of good clean comedy, plenty of amusing situation complexes and has two beautiful love romances running throughout. "Other People's Business" closes with Saturday night's performances to make way for "The Humbug."

WEST COAST-WALKER

The picture today at the West Coast-Walker theater is "The Lost Battalion," and is considered by critics as being one of the authentic stories of the World war.

The story has to do with the famous "Lost Battalion," which became surrounded by the enemy in the Argonne forest, and of its heroic stand against what seemed a certain death.

It is undoubtedly one of the most dramatic and thrilling episodes of the World war, and is actually re-enacted for the screen by the real, live, flesh and blood heroes who survived this sublime trial.

Hundreds of the battle-scarred heroes are in action, including such world-famous figures as "Go-to-Hell" Whittlesley, Maj. Gen. Alexander, Capt. Cullen, Corporal Cepaglio and Private Krotoshinsky. In addition to these famous soldiers, the cast includes Gaston Glass and Helen Ferguson in the stellar roles.

Way Watts and his band will be seen on the stage in a program of specialty numbers.

YOST BROADWAY THEATER

Rich comedy, young love and joyous melodrama blended into a delightful entertainment treat—that describes "Young April," the picture opening tonight at the Yost Broadway theater. Joseph Schildkraut, Bessie Love and Rudolph Schildkraut are featured.

"Young April" is an adaptation of Egerton Castle's novel of the same title, by Jeanie Macpherson and Douglas Doty. They have skillfully put into use an entirely new "twist" and treatment of the mythical kingdom type of photography, taking advantage of all the picturesque color and brilliancy of exotic setting, costume and royal personages, while bringing realism, comedy in abundance, and humanness of characterization to its aid.

The result is entertainment as refreshingly new as it is full of punch, color, thrills and spice. The two Schildkrauts take their real life, relationship of father and son into the films in "Young April," Rudolph playing the role of a king, Joseph that of Crown Prince. Miss Love appears as a grand duchess who must marry the prince, though she has been reared in America and has never seen him.

YOST THEATER

Cecil B. De Mille is especially fortunate. Not only does his latest production, "The Volga Boatman," which will be on view at the Yost theater tonight, deal with Russia and the Red revolution, but he has drafted a dozen members of Imperial Russia's bluest-blooded gentry to give an aristocratic background for the dramatic actions of his featured players, William Boyd, Elinor Fair, Victor Varconi, Julia Faye and Theodore Kosloff.

For instance, there is General Ivan Ikonnikoff, one of the ranking officers of the Czar's army, in service for several years before the Bolsheviks captured him. A year and a half in the mines of Siberia was followed by a fortunate escape, and he walked from upper Siberia to China, from whence he made his way to America. He still retains his military bearing and superb aristocratic aloofness, and he figures prominently in several scenes in "The Volga Boatman."

Berlenbach's offer came in the form of a telegram from his manager, Dan Hickey. Berlenbach answered immediately that he would accept the bout.

The match will be Berlenbach's first since he dropped his title to Jack Delaney.

agency conducting a separate campaign to finance its requirements.

The value of the community chest as a means of promoting community co-operation and co-ordination of effort is set forth by H. G. Nelson, principal of the Julia C. Lathrop junior high school. He says:

"Kirkpatrick, in his book 'Fundamentals of Sociology,' says, 'Civilization progresses in proportion as modes of co-operative group action become perfected and embodied in successfully working institutions.'

Forward Looking Plan

"We are today becoming so socially devitalized by our specialization of vocations and lines of endeavor that any agency or organization that helps to give us a community outlook is forward looking and constructive. Anything which all may do in common (because that only leads the community to a real like-mindedness) is valuable for that phase if for no other, but the community chest idea goes further than that—much farther. When carried through successfully, it not only provides a means for acquaintanceship and social activity, but provides means to more economically and equitably provide for those functions of our complex society that must be provided for somehow, but which cannot, as yet, be taken care of through any system of taxation."

ARMY-NAVY TICKET SCALP PROBE ASKED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—A demand may be made as soon as the house reconvenes, December 6, for a special committee investigation of the Army-Navy ticket "scandal." Representative Hamilton Fish Jr., Republican, New York, declared here today. Ticket speculators are reported to have gleaned thousands of dollars so far.

Fish said he was considering introduction of a resolution to provide for appointment of a special house committee to undertake the inquiry. "I have some personal knowledge of the situation," Fish said. "Also I have heard that secretaries of some congressmen have without the knowledge of the congressmen, obtained tickets for them and turned them over to speculators."

SUMMARY OF CROP AND BUSINESS CONDITIONS

(Compiled by F. E. Sanford of Cass, Howard & Sanford, Inc., for the Los Angeles Credit Men's Association)

Following the practice of the past few years, the Los Angeles Credit Men's association has just completed a survey of crop and business conditions in many sections of Southern California through the cooperation of over 60 banks. A summary of these reports for Orange county and a few other sections appears below:

Anaheim
This past year was, as a whole, a profitable one for orange growers in this territory. The outlook for the 1927 crop is good as most groves have an unusually heavy setting. The acreage in lemons is limited and the growers in the district enjoyed unsatisfactory returns.

The walnut crop was poor, representing only about 25 per cent of the usual crop. Some tomatoes were grown in this district and commanded good prices. Commercial loans are being satisfactorily liquidated. There is little demand for real estate loans. Building activity is greater than last year. Oil production in the adjacent fields is increasing.

Artesia
One of the important crops around Artesia this year is cauliflower, which will be marketed within the next 30 days. As no price is available yet, it is impossible to tell how profitable it will prove to be. Sugar beets were a failure and show a loss to growers.

There is a heavy demand for real estate and commercial loans. There is practically no building. Retail collections are fair. There is no oil production in this district but one well is drilling in the vicinity. As a whole the year was unsatisfactory for the farmer.

Clairemont
The Orange crop in this district is good. In some quarters it is regarded as better, while in others as about the same as last year. It will be marketed during the next 90 days and should show a fairly good profit. There is a larger crop of lemons but on account of smaller returns, there will only be a nominal profit. Groves in this district are in good condition. Next year, barring any water shortage, should prove satisfactory.

There is a steady demand for both commercial and real estate loans. Building activity has declined; retail collections are good. In this district a large portion of the sales are for cash. The prospects for the future appear good as conditions are considered to be improving right along.

Corona
The orange crop is regarded as slightly better than 1925 and will begin to be marketed in about 60 or 90 days. A profit is expected. The lemon crop was about the same as in 1925 and will be marketed in about 90 days. Profits were very poor in the summer but are a little better now.

The bean crop in this district was rather light and is being sold netting the growers just fair returns. Commercial loans are up some. There is a heavy demand for real estate loans. Building activity is about normal and retail collections are improving. Two wildcat wells are being drilled. Conditions were a little slow this summer but the outlook is favorable.

Covina
The orange crop in the Covina district ranged from fair to good and probably better than the previous crop. Valencia has been marketed and the navel crop will come in within the next 90 days. A reasonable profit will be shown to growers. The lemon crop was good and will continue to be marketed during the next few months. There will be a small profit to the growers. The walnut crop was very poor, being inferior to last year and will probably result in a small loss.

There is an active demand for commercial loans and a large demand for real estate loans. There is considerable building activity. Retail collections are slow. The orange prices were low at the first of the season, but the Valencias are now bringing good results.

Escondido
Both the orange and lemon crops in this territory are good and fairly profitable. There was a fair crop of grapes, showing a nominal profit. Condensable acreage was devoted to tomatoes, which have produced a good profit to growers. The demand for commercial loans is satisfactory, while there has been an increase in real estate loans. Building activity is good; retail collections are fair. The year as a whole has not been highly profitable to farmers who have made only a little money.

Huntington Beach
Some beans are grown in this territory. There was about a 20 per cent increase in yield this year and the crop is expected to be sold within the next 90 days at a good profit.

Oil production has increased from 15,000 to 20,000 barrels daily and there are over 75 new wells drilling. There has been considerable new territory opened for oil here. Profit was shown in beans through a larger crop, although the price is lower than last year.

There is a fair demand for commercial loans and also for real estate loans. Building activity is reflected by permits in the past four months amounting to $739,135, and represents a healthy increase. It is believed that the activity in new town lot drilling is somewhat responsible for the permits, but a considerable amount is chargeable to residence improvement and repair when buildings are moved to new locations.

La Habra
Both the orange and lemon crops are good and are now being marketed. The orange prices are good and the sizes are running satisfactorily, which should result in a profit. Lemons are showing smaller returns. The walnut crop is only running about 30 per cent. The nuts are a poorer quality and growers will make no money. Vegetable growers in this district all had fine crops, which brought good prices and consequently showed good returns.

There is an average demand for commercial loans; the demand for real estate loans is light. Only a fair amount of building activity is evidenced; retail collections ranged from slow to good. The prospects for this next year are regarded as bright.

Olive
The outlook for 1927 is for a big orange crop. The marketing of fruit is now closing and this has been a very satisfactory year. The lemon crop promises to be big for 1927 and is running about the same as the previous year. This has been a very poor year on account of low prices, resulting in loss to growers. Walnuts showed only about a 15 per cent crop.

Commercial loans are declining and real estate loans are inactive. There is but little building activity while retail collections are fair. Conditions in this district are regarded as the best since 1922, although the walnut crop failure will adversely affect the last quarter of the year.

Orange
This has been a good year for orange growers—much better than last year. Navels will start being marketed within the next 90 days. Where the groves are in good condition and properly cared for, profits are very satisfactory. The situation in connection with lemons is less favorable on account of the present low prices, which will result in a loss. The walnut crop will range from 10 per cent to 25 per cent and will show a loss this year.

This is a Valencia orange district and this last year has been better than the previous one because of the good size crop and satisfactory prices. Some institutions are experiencing a more active demand for commercial loans, while others find an easier situation. The demand for real estate loans is decreasing. There is very little building activity. Retail collections are slow in some lines and good in others.

Orland
There is an improvement in the outlook for the oranges and lemons in this territory. Both are being marketed, with the oranges showing a fair profit. The walnut crop was poor, but it is believed growers will profit a little. The apricot crop was poor, but prices were fairly good. The vegetable crop is about the same as last year and will be marketed at fair prices. The bean and sugar beet crops show an improvement over last year and will show a fair profit, although the sugar beets were below expectations.

Commercial loans are rather substantial and the same applies in the case of real estate loans. There is good activity in building and retail collections. Oil production in the community is increasing.

Pomona
Oranges in this district are running from 50 to 75 per cent of the normal crop and will be marketed within the next 90 days. Lemons show a fair crop and are now being marketed and will continue to be marketed within the next 90 days with a small profit to growers. Walnuts will only show from 40 to 50 per cent crop. Figs, grapes, apricots and peaches have all been marketed showing a small profit to growers. The bean crop was light.

There appears to be an increasing demand for commercial and real estate loans. Building activity and retail collections are a little slow.

Redlands
The orange crop is good and compares favorably with last year. It will be marketed within the next 90 days and a satisfactory profit is expected. There are very few lemons grown here, as well as walnuts, figs and grapes. The vegetable crop in the district is good.

There is an active demand for both commercial and real estate loans. Building activity compares favorably with last year. Retail collections are good. Conditions as a whole are considered equally as good, if not better, than last year.

Riverside
Oranges are good and the crop compares favorably with last year. It is expected to be marketed within the next 90 days. Lemons are only fair although about the same as the previous year. Walnuts will show about 50 per cent of a normal crop. The grape crop is good. The apricots were spotted and ranged from fair to short crops. The same held true with peaches, there being a short crop in many sections. This appears to also exist in connection with vegetable crops. The prospects for the citrus crop are very good, barring any unfavorable climatic conditions.

There is an active demand for commercial loans and a very heavy demand for real estate loans. Santa Ana
The new crop of oranges is promising. It looks as though it would be larger than last year. This is the bulk of the orange crop in Orange county. Growers expect to realize a fair profit because of good prices. The next crop should be even larger. The lemon crop was good and will run about the same as last year. On account of low prices, the profits will be small.

Estimates for the walnut crop for this district vary considerably. In one instance, it was placed at approximately 50 per cent of last year; in another, at 33 1-3 per cent, and in the third it was reported from 15 to 25 per cent of normal. There will be a small profit because of good prices following the short crop.

Figs and grapes, apricots and peaches are grown for local consumption only. Winter vegetables are grown to some extent but do not represent a major crop. The situation in connection with them is favorable, and a good profit is expected.

The bean crop is above the average and will show one of the largest lima and black eye bean crops in the history of the county. Crops are being marketed at fair prices and will show a profit. There is only one sugar beet factory operating in Orange county at present. The crop was fair this year. On account of low sugar prices not much of a profit is expected.

There is a good demand for commercial loans. In the case of real estate loans the demand is not so keen, although good loans are being made around 7 per cent. There are not as many small homes being built as there were last year, consequently building activity is only fair. Retail conditions are very fair. There is an increase in the oil production and a great deal of activity is evident in the county field. Money appears quite plentiful. Local building and loan associations seem to have a substantial accumulation of funds which is expected to continue during the balance of the year.

Whittier
The orange crop in Whittier territory compares favorably with last year and a reasonable profit is being realized. There is a good crop of lemons but the unfavorable price situation has shown only a small profit and in some cases losses to the growers.

The walnut crop was practically a failure, ranging from a minimum of 25 per cent to a maximum of 40 per cent of the average crop. The late rains last spring washed the

FULLERTON SEEKS GRID GAME WITH S. A.

NAVY STILL IN RACE FOR EAST FOOTBALL TITLE

Victory Over Army Eleven Will Put Midshipmen on Plane With Notre Dame

BY HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Notre Dame and the Navy, two of the greatest football teams of the year, now face the task of surviving the season undefeated and then make their claims for the national championship.

Notre Dame, in a great victory over the Army, came as close to any certainty that football has for a mythical title but that very victory may turn out to be the means of a dispute.

The Navy has only one more game and if the Navy should happen to beat the Army in Chicago November 27 and pile up a bigger score than 7 to 0, by which Notre Dame beat the Cadets, the midshipmen will find themselves in fine voice for some first class claiming.

Three More to Play

Notre Dame has three more games to play and if Knute Rockne's fine young team wins from Drake, Carnegie Tech and Southern California, the Micks will be able to show a season's performance that no other team can equal.

If the Army should win from the Navy—and the Cadets certainly are not to be condemned to death because of the loss to Notre Dame—the claim of Notre Dame will be even stronger.

The navy has escaped defeat so far on a heavy schedule against Purdue, Drake, Richmond, Princeton, Colgate, Michigan, West Virginia, Wesleyan and Georgetown. It is true that the midshipmen won fluky victories over Colgate and Princeton, but there was nothing fluky about the manner in which Michigan was defeated and Michigan is one of the strongest teams in the country.

Army Meets Canisius

The Army plays Canisius Saturday and even though strange things have been happening all season, the Cadets certainly ought to win and advance on the Navy in the season's finals in good shape.

Brown and Lafayette, undefeated among the major eastern teams, haven't much of a claim for an equal footing with Notre Dame, the Navy or the Army.

CAPTAIN SWAN IS IMPORTANT COG IN CARD GRID MACHINE

FRED SWAN

Stanford university needs only a victory Saturday over its traditional rival, California, to clinch the football championship of the Pacific Coast conference. Captain Fred Swan, (above) veteran guard, is one of the most important cogs in "Pop" Warner's powerful aggregation. This is his third and last season on the big Red team.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, ANAHEIM MEET HERE FRIDAY IN FIRST COUNTY LEAGUE TIE PLAYOFF

Poly field, Santa Ana, will be the locale Friday afternoon of the first effort on the part of Huntington Beach, Anaheim and Fullerton high schools to solve the Orange County Football league championship problem, now in such a muddled state that the three institutions are all tied for first place although their regular playing season has been completed.

FULLERTON IS BEATEN, 20-9, BY S. A. GIRLS

A mar on the record of the Santa Ana junior college girls' basketball team was removed when Miss Florence Treadway's players won a thrilling 20 to 19 victory from Fullerton junior college in a return game played in Andrews gymnasium here yesterday. Fullerton defeated the local team earlier in the season.

Miss Theima Patton scored 12 of the Santa Ana points.

The last minutes of the game were packed with thrills, Fullerton overcoming cutting Santa Ana's four point lead to one point before the game was called.

The line-up:

Santa Ana: (20) (19) Fullerton

Patton (12).....F..... (9) Hetebrink

Harnois (8).....F..... (2) Latourette

Stanley.....C..... Palmer

Hunter.....G..... Atrous

Davis.....G..... Young

McWaters.....G..... Young

Substitutions: Fullerton-Shea (8) for Latourette; Dull for Brown; Daniels for Palmer.

SENIOR GIRLS SECOND IN POLY CLASS GAMES

While the junior girls have the interclass basketball championship clinched regardless of the outcome of remaining playoffs, second place was at stake when the senior girls defeated the sophomores, 29 to 12, yesterday afternoon at Santa Ana high school.

Seniors (29) (12) Sophomores

Nicholson (7).....F..... (2) Hurd

Bromell (4).....F..... (4) Paterson

Plank.....C..... Sherwood

Glenn.....G..... Taylor

Wilson.....G..... Allen

Saladin.....G..... Moon

Substitutions: Seniors-Brannon (4) for Nicholson; Richards (14) for Bromell; Hagley for Plank; Robertson for Wilson; Bruner for Baldwin. Sophomores-Cummings (6) for Paterson; Hill for Sherwood; Gardner for Taylor; Hastie for Glenn; Smith for Moon.

HARBOR LEAGUE LEADERS CLASH NEXT SABBATH

Whether the Republic Supply company team of Huntington Beach is to make a runaway race of the 1926 Orange County Harbor league will be determined Sunday afternoon when Joe Rodgers' entry meets the undefeated Laguna Beach Lumber company at Huntington Beach.

The Republic Supplies have so much talent on their roster and have traveled through the first three weeks of the season at such a fast clip that some of the critics have put them down as a cinch to finish far ahead of the field when the last game is played January 2.

Laguna Beach, however, is not to be thrust aside with merely a wave of the hand and there are a couple of other outfits in the circuit who will have a lot to say about which aggregation is going to take home the A. G. Spalding trophy.

The Artists, now known as the Lumbermen, have been getting good pitching, fast fielding and heavy swatting and they may be the one to survive the season's first crucial clash this week.

Orange, now under the management of Charley Bustillos, came to life last week and beat the Westminster Beet-toppers, rallying in the last of the ninth with two away to score their victory. The disgruntled Westminster boys were so disgusted at losing a victory slip from their grasp that they even neglected to file a box score.

Orange, better and stronger than last week, will invade the lair of the Tiernan Typewriter company, of Santa Ana, this coming Sabbath.

The Union Oil company of Huntington Beach, decisively thrashed by the Republic Supplies last Sunday, travel to Midway City this week to take a look at Westminster's ball tossers.

A new invention is an eye protector for hens, an attractive pair of tortoiseshell goggles. The purpose is to prevent other fowls from pecking out their eyes.

90,000 TO SEE 'BIG GAME' AT BERKELEY BOWL

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 17.—Nothing is predicted but a terrific beating of California's Golden Bears at the hands of Stanford Saturday in the Berkeley oval, but if you want a ticket just try and get it. There isn't any more. The "big game" promises to be witnessed by a capacity crowd of some 90,000.

Betting on the game has assumed odds of 5 to 1 favoring Stanford, which is somewhat daring, inasmuch as football is football with breaks. The fight of the Golden Bear against great odds may rise to such inspired heights that Stanford, confident of victory might barely possibly be nosed out.

Observers can see but one position in which the Golden Bears are superior to the Red Horde. Andy Miller, California center, is conceded better than McCreary at Stanford.

Stanford warriors take their last workout this afternoon. The players will be honor guests at the traditional bonfire rally on Stanford campus tonight.

Coach "Pop" Warner and Captain Fred Swan will make speeches and the team will depart after the rally for Mount Diablo Country club for the remainder of the week. Golf and setting up exercises will comprise their training.

Warner has refused to announce his opening lineup. It will not be officially announced until his team takes the field. But it is probable the same players who faced Washington will be sent against the Golden Bear, excepting Mike Murphy who may be replaced by Dick Hyland at left half.

Coach "Nib" Price is anxious to get his men away from the campus rabble that always precedes the big game. After a final workout he will lead his charges into seclusion at a country home, away from the din of boisterous collegiate pregame exuberance.

Price has been the victim of the most disastrous season in Golden Bear history, but a victory Saturday would make Bear partisans forget all those five defeats in a row.

NOTED BALL PACKERS TO BE IN U. S. C.-NOTRE DAME TILT

Chris Flanagan Morton Kaer

La Habra Club to Hold Turkey Shoot

Some exciting sports is promised by the La Habra Rifle club at its Thanksgiving turkey shoot to be held on its range two miles southwest of La Habra Saturday and Sunday, November 20 and 21. In addition to the regular clay pigeon shooting, there will be contests with high-power rifles on the standard range, small-bore rifles, pistols and novelty shooting.

"Devil May" Kaer or "Gone Again" Flanagan? On the brow of one of these rambling gridsters the laurels in the Southern California Notre Dame battle in Los Angeles December 4 are pretty certain of resting when the final gun is sounded.

Kaer is the Trojan quarter-back about whom Los Angeles has gone hero-worshipping crazy this fall. He is the youth who led the nation in touchdown scoring honors last season, with 19 to his credit. Kaer was second high point annexer in the country last year. Now the "Red Terror of Red Bluff" is again leading the far west in points scored, having chalked up 11 touchdowns for 66 digits.

Flanagan is the Notre Dame backfield star. Stationed at left half he has been the scoring monarch of the Irish team for two seasons. Last year he counted 57 points, totalling from nine touchdowns and three goals at touchdowns. This record placed him at the head of middle western scorers. To date in the strenuous 1926 season, Flanagan has run up 30 counters.

Flanagan's first name is Christopher but when the fans saw him start steaming down the field they began to yell "Off Again, On Again, Gone Again Flanagan" with emphasis on the "Gone Again."

Eskimos are abandoning the skin kayaka for the motor boat.

COACHES SMITH, OLIVER CONFER ON TILT PLANS

Both Elevens Have 'Irons' In Fire and Meeting Is Doubtful This Season

Santa Ana and Fullerton high schools may or may not meet on the gridiron this season.

"Shorty" Smith, coach of the Redshirts, and "Tex" Oliver, mentor of the Poly squad, conferred today relative to a resumption of athletic relations between the once traditional rivals but nothing definite resulted from their confab.

Both teams still have so many "irons in the fire" that the scheduling of a post-season joust, tentatively agreed on early in the year, is impracticable at the present time.

Santa Ana has two more Coast Preparatory league games scheduled—with Alhambra at Alhambra this Saturday and with San Diego at Santa Ana November 27.

Fullerton has completed its regular Orange County league schedule but is now in a triple tie for first place and ready to engage in a playoff with Huntington Beach and Anaheim. The Redshirts must play at least one and possibly two more games and if they should eliminate the Seaside and the Mother Colonists they would be eligible to represent their organization in the Southern California championship semi-finals.

December 10, Coach Smith said, would be the earliest that Fullerton could possibly meet Santa Ana.

Coach Oliver does not look with disfavor on a post-season engagement with the Redshirts but said he would not consider it if his players were not favorably inclined or if the eleven should suffer injuries in the Alhambra and San Diego games.

"If my boys want the game and are in physical condition to play after their next two games we will be willing to meet Fullerton," Oliver said. "We will not, however, consider the game if we are unable to put our strength on the field or if members of the squad are not anxious to go through another hard contest."

"We feel that the resumption of relations between the two old rivals would help athletics in general and we should like to draw up a two-year contract for a home and home game with Fullerton if this year's game is arranged."

Bears' Big 'C' Is Painted Red

BERKELEY, Cal., Nov. 17.—Emboldened by a burlesque in the Greek theater, in which California sophomores showed how they regard the big "C" on Charter hill from deprecation, somebody, allegedly a Stanford sympathizer, painted the big "C" a brilliant Cardinal Red yesterday.

The effrontery was worse than the deed, inasmuch as it transpired in broad daylight. Sophomores rallied 'round the paint bucket and the big "C" shone gold again.

Irish-Trojan Contest Tickets Sold

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 17.—The "standing room only" sign was hung out today by ticket officials of the University of Southern California when they announced that the 76,000 seats available for the Southern California Notre Dame game, December 4, were gone.

Of the 76,000 sold, 2000 went to Notre Dame and 6000 to Notre Dame alumni in Southern California.

All seats were reserved and consequently there will be no general admission sale.

BILLY EVANS

ROUGH PLAY

It is unfortunate that the football teams of West Point and Syracuse recently became so rough in their play that athletic relations between these two great institutions of learning have been severed.

In a sense, the incident is more than a mere difference between the two colleges; it is of decided interest to the public.

West Point is our College of War, where a fighting spirit should exist. Syracuse is an integral part of the educational system of the great state of New York. It isn't noted for turning out mollycoddlers.

What provoked the rough play? On good authority I have the information that language hardly in keeping with polite conversation started the feud that finally ended in one of the players taking a couple of punches at the referee.

SECRET STUFF

The actions of the Syracuse player in so forgetting himself is, for the time at least, unpardonable.

Repentant of his conduct, the player involved did the gentlemanly and proper thing by resigning from the squad. He will be eligible to play next year, as he should.

Football is a game of personal contact, sometimes involving very rough handling. The Syracuse player simply went too far.

However, it seems that the affair should be thoroughly aired, if necessary an investigation be made, to properly place the blame. No doubt both teams were at fault but I am positive some specific incident precipitated the bar-room tactics that were indulged in before the finish of the contest.

ARMY AGGRESSIVE

I am taking no sides in the discussion but frankly believe there has been too much secrecy about the entire affair. The dirty linen should be washed.

That the Army doesn't play parlor football is shown by the statistics of the Yale game, which followed the contest with Syracuse.

In that game, which the Army won by the decisive score of 33-0, it was penalized 100 yards for offside play.

Offside play can be directly traced to aggressiveness. In the Yale game the Army just about set a record when the West Pointers were penalized 16 times for a loss of 100 yards.

If he officials in charge of the Army-Syracuse game were lax as to discipline, it merely adds another unexplained feature to the stigma cast on college football.

HARD FOOTBALL

Football is a strenuous game. It cannot be played after the manner of dominoes. The players must give and take without losing their sense of sportsmanship. The officials must ever dominate the situation.

Cream-puff tactics do not make

MARKETING OF CROPS SUBJECT OF U. S. EXPERT

Fruit Growers and Farmers At Fullerton Hear Talk By Chris Christensen

"We have come into a new day in American agriculture, and if we think we can farm in the old individualistic way, just as our forefathers farmed, we are missing the greatest point in modern agriculture," said Chris L. Christensen, chief, division of co-operative marketing, United States department of agriculture, addressing the fifty-ninth fruit growers' and farmers' convention at Fullerton, Wednesday, November 10.

"We must move closer to the idea that efficient marketing of farm products is as fundamental as efficient production, and that the two must be linked together in organized agriculture."

"In applying the principles of co-operative organization to the marketing of farm products, it is fundamental that we recognize in co-operative marketing a medium through which fundamental improvements in production, as well as marketing may be brought about, because of the collective human relationship which is developed between the producer and the marketing machinery."

More Associations Formed

"The number of farmers' co-operative associations has increased from less than 6000 in 1915 to approximately 12,500 in 1925. Volume of business has grown from $635,338,000 to approximately two and one-half billion dollars, and the number of farmers who are members of co-operative associations from 651,000 to near two million."

"On the Pacific coast, 643 associations from Oregon, Washington and California have reported to the department. The aggregate amount of business done by these associations last year was approximately $90 million dollars and $225,000,000 of this was done by California co-operatives."

"Co-operation has no magical properties nor is it a cure-all for the farmers' problems. Every farmer knows that improved farm machinery is of no use to him unless he puts it to work and guides it. Improved marketing machinery is likewise of no value unless it is intelligently directed. Organization in itself does not solve the marketing problem, and co-operative organization will only succeed insofar as it is properly applied and intelligently directed."

"A co-operative association cannot avoid the services that must be performed in marketing farm products. They can and do reduce the cost of these services, but whether sold co-operatively or not, oranges, for example, must be harvested, hauled to packing houses, graded, packed, loaded in cars, transported to the various markets, sold to wholesale receivers, trucked to the stores of these receivers, sold to retailers in quantities which probably do not exceed a few boxes, and finally the original carload must be delivered to literally thousands of consumers in individual quantities which probably do not exceed one or more dozen each. All these services must be paid for, and the cost of these services is a deduction from the returns which the grower receives for his crop."

Four Main Accomplishments

"There are at least four things that a large-scale, efficiently managed co-operative association can do better than a private middleman. (1) It can standardize grades and handling methods; (2) it can merchandise the product; (3) it can stimulate the demand for the product and find new markets and new uses for it; (4) it can give the farmer information which will enable him to visualize market conditions six months or a year in advance, and make adjustments in his production plans."

"In the development of new uses for the product, we may point for example to the experience of the Sun-Maid Raisin growers of California in promoting the use of raisin bread which now furnishes a market for many tons of raisins each year. The development of an orange juice extractor by the California Fruit Growers' exchange, which furnishes a market for 2500 cars of oranges each year. Oranges used in this way do not compete with fruit sold through the ordinary trade channels, but with various drinks dispensed at soda fountains."

"These are all methods designed to widen the market for farm products. They are useful and necessary activities and we cannot conceive of them being carried on by any

MEET MAUDINE! SHE'S COLLEGE BEAUTY QUEEN

Students of Ohio State university at Columbus might with all propriety have chosen Miss Katherine Porter, left, as their beauty queen. Few, if any, would have criticized had they picked Miss Margery Rutledge, right. Equally unanimous might have been a vote in favor of Miss Willen Ludwig, below. But did any of these three exemplars of pulchritude win? No—not a bit of it. The winner, reader, was lovely Maudine Ormsby, whose map appears in the center. Maudine is the prize cow of the university's agricultural department.

PROBLEMS OF THE SOIL

Q. Do you know of any reliable figures concerning the yield of carobs per acre and the value of the pods? What market is there for them?—S. B. R.

A. No very reliable figures as to yields of budded carob trees based on actual yields in California on an individual seedling trees in California have borne from 200 to 400 pounds each after 25 to 30 years' growth, but here again, no acre figures are available. Practically all the figures quoted are those of yields in southern Europe and Mediterranean regions. Budded trees there begin to bear the third or fourth year after planting and at the fourth year would yield from 1200 to 2000 pounds of pods per acre. After 25 to 30 years the yield might possibly reach 10 to 12 tons per acre, assuming of course the trees were properly selected, were planted in good soil, had suitable care, were not frosted and climatic conditions proved favorable for their culture.

Carobs have sold in Santa Ana for about 20 cents per pound, but the demand has been slight. It seems to be evident that a market will have to be developed for them if any amount is offered for sale. Their principal use, has been for stock food, but they are also of some value in the preparation of syrups and other by-products.

Q. Advise me what the action of sulphate ammonia or bone meal would be on a lawn at this time of other agency except the growers' co-operative organizations.

"The co-operative marketing act, recently passed by congress, which authorized the creation of a division of co-operative marketing in the bureau of agricultural economics, of the United States department of agriculture, enables the department to give the attention to research, education and service work for the farmers' co-operative associations which the importance of the movement deserves. This bill was drafted after conferences with co-operative leaders representing all commodities and all sections of the country."

"In closing, let me say, the necessity and desirability of organization for agriculture is a vital question. It cannot be evaded by pointing to failures in co-operative organization or stating that farmers have operated successfully without organization. Organization is necessary and co-operation is the form of organization that best meets with needs of farmers today."

the year. How much of each should I use?—W. E. D.

A. With the coming of cool weather lawn grass will make very little growth and any considerable amount of quick acting fertilizers such as bone meal or sulphate of ammonia will do but little good. In fact, growth will be so slow and most of the nitrogen in these materials will be so quickly available that the plants will not be able to use it. Such fertilizers are much better used in the spring when the active growth is beginning. A very small amount might possibly be used now, but it should be borne in mind that any active nitrogen the plants cannot make almost immediate use of, will be lost. Manures, such as sheep and cow manure, can profitably be used in the fall, as they decompose quite slowly and are not so readily available as the sulphate of ammonia or bone meal and bone (bone meal).

Bone meal can be used on a lawn at the rate of two or three pounds to 100 square feet, or if you use sulphate of ammonia only about one-half that amount. In any case the latter must be used carefully and be well scattered and then the lawn wet down immediately after the application, else burning will probably follow.

Q. Can I safely plant lemon and persimmon trees in an old cedar field where nematodes have become so numerous that it is almost impossible to raise any vegetables? How about a cover crop to be raised between the trees?—S. W.

A. So far as known the root-knot nematode does not attack citrus. There have been a number of reports that they did, but such reports have never been substantiated. There is a nematode, however, that does attack citrus roots, but it confines its attentions strictly to citrus. Persimmon trees would probably suffer severely and it would not be advisable to plant them in nematode infested soil. Persimmon trees on certain roots, such as American, might be more resistant, but the commonly used stock, Lotus, is subject to attack. Yetch and melilotus are injured by nematodes, but not to any great extent. These legumes could be planted in infested soil and if other conditions were favorable would make a crop. These two plants grow in cold weather when nematodes are comparatively inactive, which is a favorable circumstance.

Q. I have had trouble for several years in trying to grow two orange and one lemon trees. They seem to die back at the tips and many of the leaves turn yellow and drop. They have had plenty of water. The soil is fairly loose but there is some clay underneath. Can you suggest a remedy?—W. B. C.

A. The clay subsoil could easily be responsible for the yellow leaves and dead tips. Citrus trees are very intolerant of an impenetrable subsoil, particularly if it is clay. Water will not, to any great extent, penetrate such a subsoil and unless there is enough of a slope for the excess water to drain away it means that it will stand around roots of trees planted there.

The only remedy is to caution proper drainage and use caution not to over-irrigate. Such a subsoil as clay cannot be blasted successfully, as it would only run together when wet. Large amounts of organic matter, such as bean straw, alfalfa, straw manure, leguminous or non-leguminous cover crops and either lime or gypsum, can be turned under around the trees. These substances might in time act favorably on the subsoil but usually such a condition is very hard to correct. Adequate drainage is a necessity in citrus culture.

COTTON TENANTS ROVE

The cotton regions of Oklahoma are the hardest hit by moving tenants. The wheat belt of the state is a more settled area, where a relatively small proportion of tenants move annually.

LARGE DAIRY INDUSTRY

Production of dairy products in Canada is now at the $300,000,000 level with exports running to $57,000,000 annually. The eastern half of Canada produces 98 per cent of the cheese and 71 per cent of the butter.

FINAL REPORT ON EGG LAYING CONTEST MADE

The 1925-26 Southern California egg laying contest at Pomona officially closed five days prior to the first of the month to permit the entries to be returned and houses repaired for the entries for the contest this year.

In the light division the birds averaged 192 eggs for the 360-day period and the heavy division averaged 176 eggs for a like period. G. F. Bell of Gardena won the contest with a pen of single comb white leghorns. His total for the year was 2255 eggs. R. P. Stephen won second with hens laying 2237 eggs. J. T. Milligan of San Fernando had high hen with a record of 302 eggs, 291 of which were extra eggs. Moses L. Frick of Bell had second high hen with a record of 296 eggs for the contest year.

Only two entries of Anconas were in the contest. Block's Poultry ranch of Costa Mesa finished first with 1705 eggs, while the entry of T. H. Holmes of Arcadia finished second with 1633 eggs. Mr. Block had high hen with 227 eggs, while Mr. Holmes had second high hen with 222 eggs.

Lester Sprowls of Joplin, Mo., had high Rhode Island Red pen with 1651 eggs, while A. H. Heinemann of Orange had second high pen with 1619 eggs.

There were five entries from Orange county, two of which were by Block's Poultry ranch, Costa Mesa, one by Will Hatch Poultry ranch, Tustin; Elmer H. Koenig, Orange, all of which were in the first 27 at the end of the year.

EGG SHELLS TESTED WITH HEAVY SLEDGE

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 17.—A sixteen pound sledge has been assigned the unusual duty in the poultry department at Cornell University of demonstrating the strength of shells of hen's eggs.

The hammer is raised and lowered automatically, and when it strikes the egg the pressure is registered by a scale. Extra pressure is applied as desired by adjusting a spring attached to the handle. Average eggs stand 23 pounds without breaking, and on several trials eggs have stood nearly fifty pounds.

The purpose of this demonstration is to show the ordinary pressure which an egg will stand and to show why it is desirable to produce eggs with strong shells. Strong-shelled eggs ship best and evaporate least. This prolongs their freshness and pleases the consumer.

The breaking strength of eggs indicates, to some extent, breeding and feeding of the hens. Minerals must make a part of the ration, and in this connection cod liver oil is an aid, for it helps the assimilation of minerals by the birds.

According to the department, this is the first time such an arrangement has been used to demonstrate the strength of the shells of eggs. Previously the breaking strength has been tested by placing the eggs between two hardwood blocks.

AVOCADO WINS FAVOR IN EAST ORDERS SHOW

First Commercial Crop Necessitates National Marketing Program

National distribution for California avocados began in earnest last Saturday when the California Avocado Growers' Exchange shipped 616 boxes of choice fruit to eastern and southern markets. It was announced by the exchange yesterday. Each avocado was stamped with the "Calavo" brand of the exchange.

The largest lots were absorbed by New York, Chicago and Boston, although smaller lots went to other eastern markets, and one shipment went as far south as Birmingham, Ala. This year's crop is considered the first commercial crop that California has produced and necessitates national distribution to prevent glutting the present market.

The variety now coming onto the market is the Fuerte, the most important variety grown. Harvesting of the Fuerte will continue until April or May. Other varieties, however, are ripening throughout the year.

The avocado industry has developed rapidly in California, and only in recent years has it become apparent that the production was becoming so heavy that systematic steps must be taken toward orderly marketing. The California Avocado Growers' Exchange was incorporated in February, 1924, as a growers' co-operative marketing agency.

Sales Increase
During 1924 the exchange marketed 279,700 pounds of avocados at an average price of 35 cents a pound, and in 1925 some 252,578 pounds were sold at an average price of 40 cents a pound. It is believed that sales for 1926 will aggregate more than 400,000 pounds and the average price will exceed 45 cents a pound.

George B. Hodgkin, manager of the exchange, states that on a conservative estimate the production for 1927 will be upward of 2,000,000 pounds. At present there are some 4000 acres of avocados in California, a little more than 1000 acres of which are producing. None of this can be called full grown, as there are but a half-dozen mature avocado trees in California. These trees, which are some 30 years of age, are still increasing in size and at the present time, bearing at times as much as 3000 pounds of fruit in a single season.

Educate Public

A higher percentage of the people of Southern California familiar with the avocado than in any other section of the country, due to the numerous exhibits of fruit and distribution of literature by the California Avocado association during the past few years. Similar educational campaigns will soon be inaugurated in San Francisco and eastern cities.

The composition of the fruit, as revealed by analysis of the United States department of agriculture and division of nutrition of the University of California, shows that the avocado is a competent substitute for meat and eggs in the diet. The avocado is a native of America.

DISTRIBUTE FILMS ON FARM SUBJECTS

Working in co-operation with the department of vocational education of the state board of education, the California Farm Bureau federation has outlined a series of educational motion pictures, which are to be released through the regular channels to motion picture houses. Grant W. Kenney, head of the farm bureau's motion picture department, is in charge of the work.

The pictures will be in the nature of news reels, and the first one, just released, shows the farm bureau hog auction in Tulare county. The boys and girls' agricultural club convention at the university farm, Davis; the annual conference of farm advisors at the University of California, Berkeley; culling the boarder hen; the bane of the bee hive, a demonstration of foulbrood control by high school students; and music in the air, showing the Bakersfield high school band.

"DAIRY BERTILLON" IS EMPLOYED ON COWS

Dairy scientists are measuring cows to learn their secrets. At top is the cows' "rogue's gallery," where their growth is recorded by photograph. Lower photos show two ways of measuring the animals to discover their productive capacities.

Most Exacting Series of Tests Ever Undertaken Will Aid Farmers

The American dairy farmer is going to reap the benefit of the most exacting series of tests on cows ever undertaken.

These tests are under the direction of the United States department of agriculture. They are being conducted by specialists of the bureau of dairying at Washington, who are getting the co-operation of many important agricultural colleges in the country.

Nothing is taken for granted nowadays about dairy animals, their needs or their performance. Tests cover everything about them, even to the colors inherited from the breeding of different types of cattle.

Every type of test, however, is directed toward one end, that of creating healthier animals and better producers.

To achieve this goal measurements first have to be taken. From these measurements, statistics will be co-ordinated to lead investigators to definite conclusions for the welfare of the animals.

Special Rules Invented
Several courses of measurement of dairy cattle are now being undertaken at the government farm at Beltsville, Md., as well as agricultural experiment stations in the various states.

One important series that has been going along for some time is that adopted by W. W. Swett, of the U. S. bureau of dairying, with the late Sophie 19th of Hood farm as the subject.

Swett has taken every possible type of record about Sophie 19th, in order to discover their relation with their milk production records. He has invented special yardsticks, callipers and tapes for the purpose. He has measured her body from all sides, its angles and even its separate parts.

After her death, Swett measured the sizes of the internal organs. He has made similar measurements of other animals, for the same purpose.

Cows' Rogues' Gallery
Out on the yard of the government farm is a checkered fence, against which the animals are stood to be photographed at regular intervals from birth to adulthood.

With the camera in the same position at all times, the growth of the animal can be noted, her change of angles and lines, and her development of the important parts of her body.

Comparisons are made to show the progress of each animal. As yet, however, figures are still incomplete to lead the agriculturists to any conclusions. Measurements are still going on.

Another kind of fact gathering is that devised by a student of the University of Missouri. He has invented a sort of speedometer, which he runs over the skin of the cow at regular intervals, to measure it accurately.

Size Matches Weight
After measuring the hides of nearly 100 cows, he has found that there is some relation between size of the hide and the weight of the animal. From the figures gained by his measurements he has been able to construct a formula by which he can compute the surface area of dairy cows merely by weighing them.

Knowing the surface area and weight of an animal, an expert can figure fairly accurately its productive ability. This, of course, is still more or less hit and miss. But the combination of measurements now being taken may soon lead them to definite formulas for such purpose.

Then, by merely weighing each animal, and having such formulas before him, any farmer may be able to tell what may be expected of his dairy stock.

Cow Testing for Month Summed Up

The monthly summary of the Orange County Cow Testing association shows 192 cows tested, averaging 904 pounds of milk and 35.4 pounds of butterfat per cow. This is an average test of 3.87 pounds. There were 223 cows producing over 40 pounds of butterfat.

H. L. Wakeham owned the high grade cow, producing 91.3 pounds of butterfat. M. C. Tolle had the best purebred cow, producing 69.2 pounds of butterfat.

HOP FARMERS BACK AFTER DRY FRIGHT

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y., Nov. 17.—The hop farms of Otsego county, which have been practically abandoned since the enactment of the prohibition law, are again under cultivation, producing some of the best hops grown in the world.

When prohibition went into effect, hop farmers believed that the market for their product was dead. Without hops their farms would not pay, as the other dairy and farm products in this district did not allow a profit for the time, expense and work involved.

Many farmers sold their land and moved to the city. In a few years 1800 farms were abandoned and the ground was lying idle.

While many farmers moved away and others who remained discontinued hop cultivation, a few farmer-speculators continued to raise the crop. They found that the marketing fears of their neighbors were imaginary. The other farmers had overlooked the Canadian consumers and the same domestic market which has made grapes profitable.

Now thousands of Otsego farmers who left their land and moved to cities are eager to return. Many already have gone back. Others, still suspicious of the hop market, have formed a corporation which has taken over 1100 acres to be devoted to hop culture.

If the conditions are favorable—this corporation expects to increase its acreage six times the original size in 1927. The hops were planted early this year and will be ready for picking next summer.

The farmers of the region are watching the experiment closely. If the market continues to offer profits to the farmers, the Otsego county hop industry soon will be as flourishing as ever.

ATTRACTIVE WOMEN

If You Would Be Attractive You Must Be Healthy

A beautiful woman is always admired. There are many types of beauty. But no woman can be truly beautiful unless she is healthy. Radiant vitality is always attractive however plain a woman's features may be. Many a woman has found her health improved through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Weakness, loss of weight, and a pale complexion were a few things of which Mrs. J. C. Taylor of Box 211, Tallahassee, Florida, complained before she started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. "I could not even sit down and talk to a friend for any length of time," she states. "I would forget what I was talking about and felt so blue." Mrs. Taylor is so pleased with the work of the Vegetable Compound that she keeps a bottle of it in the house at all times—and when it is empty, her husband makes sure that she has a new bottle. "I have regained my strength," Mrs. Taylor writes. "I can do all my housework now and I feel just fine."

CLUB MEETS AT ST. ANN'S INN

Members of the Orange County Press club today declared that the meeting, last night, at St. Ann's Inn, was the most enjoyable in the history of the organization.

Entertainment was provided through the courtesy of the West Coast-Walker theater and the Fanchon and Marco productions, and was arranged by Mr. Walker for the Press club. It included the Connor twins, Thelma and Velma; Tommy Harris, dancer, and the dancing team of girls of Fanchon and Marco's. "A Tune You Can't Dance To" was the title of the first number was the "Lucky Day" song from "George White's Scandals." The second number was a Kalua version.

The Connor twins sang "Where'd You Get Those Eyes," "Little Red Riding Hood" and "Red, Red, Red." They were vigorously encouraged. Harris sang "How Many Times," offered an original dance creation, and responded to the encore by singing "Walking Around in Circles."

Watts offered "Mary Lou" and several other songs, accompanying himself on the ukulele.

Members of Ensemble

The members of the dancing company were Vee Maule, Ardath Gailer, Lee Critchfield, Winifred Salisbury, Peggy Evans, Rosalind Roenneburg and Alice Boudard.

Among the visitors of the club last night was Dr. Conrad Richter, mayor of Newport Beach, who told the club that the entertainment was the best he had ever seen and who thanked the entertainers for their co-operation in making the meeting a huge success.

AUTO AND WINE ARE CAPTURED AFTER PURSUIT

After a chase of several miles over dirt roads, between trees and around sharp turns, Deputy Sheriff Dan Adams and Don Mozley Monday night captured a barrel of wine and an automobile, which had just been abandoned in the Cypress district.

Yesterday, in Anaheim justice court, Al Rennie, 32, Cypress oil driller, pleaded guilty to possession of liquor and was fined $200.

The capture of the liquor came as much as a surprise to the officers as it did to Rennie.

A telephone message from Cypress to the sheriff's office notified officers that a "wild party" was being staged in the oil town and Mozley and Adams hurried there for the purpose of quieting the disturbance. They entered a garage and, as they did, a car, which Mozley attempted to flag down, was driven away. The officers gave chase. The driver of the machine turned out his lights and speeded up. He turned one corner after another. After a four-mile chase, the pursuit grew too hot for the driver of the Cypress machine, so he deserted the car and vanished in the darkness.

Mozley and Adams confiscated the car and found in the rear seat the barrel of wine.

They told persons in the vicinity that if the driver wanted his machine, he would find it at the sheriff's office.

C. L. Barnett, deputy sheriff at Cypress, yesterday brought Rennie to the sheriff's office. A complaint was made out and the man sent to Justice Kuchel, in Anaheim, where he was fined $200.

80 MEN, BOYS ATTEND FATHER AND SON MEET

Eighty men and boys were present last night at the father and son banquet in the social hall of the Richland Avenue Methodist church.

The meeting was the first of its type since the appointment of the Rev. Mr. Edgin to the pastorate and the new pastor evidenced in many ways his sincere and deep interest in the youth of this community.

Z. B. West Jr., district attorney-elect, was the principal speaker of the evening, his subject being "The Laws of God and the Laws of Man." The attorney pointed out impressively that America's greatest problem is crime and the growing juvenile delinquency. He declared that at one time last year 42 per cent of the prisoners in the Los Angeles jail were under 23 years of age. Of this number, he said, 38 per cent were incarcerated for major crimes, such as murder and burglary.

"This problem will not be solved until America returns to the ideals of the stabilized home, where should be centered the social and spiritual life of the boys and girls," West commented.

Hendric Van Rensselaer, president of the student body of the Junior college, representing the sons, spoke on the topic of "Pals." With Harry Garstang at the piano, McKee Fisk, educational director at the Junior college, led in the community singing of father and son songs, while during the service of the meal, prepared by women of the church, the church orchestra played several selections.

Other numbers on the program included greetings by the pastor; vocal numbers by Clarence Ranney, who offered Geoffrey O'Hara's "Give a Man a Horse He Can Ride," accompanied by Joe Warnock; two numbers by the Richland Avenue church quartet, "Return Soft, Gentle Evening" (Emerson) and "Winter Song" (Bullard) and piano solos by Joe Warner, "Nola" and "Kitten on the Keys."

The committee in charge of the meeting was composed of Fisk, P. C. Bowne and Will S. Kellogg. Members of the quartet are Bowne, first tenor; Warner, second tenor; Fisk, first bass, and Ranney, second bass.

Sunday night, the services were given over to the boys and their fathers, the Rev. Mr. Edgin speaking on "The Measure of the Boy."

LAKE AGAIN'S SELECTED HEAD OF FAIR BOARD

At the annual organization meeting of the board of directors of the Orange County Fair association, held yesterday afternoon in the offices of the farm bureau, Harry Lake, of Garden Grove, again was elected president. S. W. Stanley, of Tustin, was chosen vice president and Frank L. Purinton, Santa Ana, treasurer. The officers remain the same as last year, with the exception of the vice presidency, this office formerly being held by S. M. Hollingshead, of Anaheim.

The matter of dates for the 1927 fair was discussed by the board, but no action taken, although there seemed to be a decided majority for the retention of the same dates on which the fair was held this year. This would bring the 1927 event the first week in September and again open the fair on Labor day. However, no official action will be taken until the next meeting of the board.

Harry Welch will be the official representative of the Orange County Fair association at the San Francisco meeting of western fair officials. This meeting will be held in the Whitcomb hotel, December 17 and 18. All fair dates will be officially approved by the association.

Auto Haan, who was recommended by Auto Trades association as its representative on the board of directors, was elected a member at yesterday's meeting. Haan probably will be asked to direct the destinies of the automobile exhibit held annually in connection with the fair.

President Lake made the following committee appointments at yesterday's meeting:

Budget and finance—George Raymer, Frank Purinton, S. W. Stanley and H. A. Lake.

Premiums—Mrs. J. V. Kelsey.

Publicity—Harry Welch and Edgar Johnson.

Industrial and concessions—George Raymer.

Automobiles—Otto Haan.

Livestock and horse show—S. W. Stanley, John Ragan, Frank Purinton.

The ground committee, composed of S. W. Stanley, Frank Purinton and J. R. Hunt, will remain as appointed for 1926. Following the election of officers and committee appointments, Manager Hunt made a report of the activities of the association and gave a brief outline of work to be accomplished in the near future. The membership campaign is continuing and will in the future be under the direct charge of S. W. Stanley, membership chairman, and the manager.

FORCE OF ROTARY TOLD BY SPEAKER

"Rotary World Wide" was the subject of an address given before the Santa Ana Rotary club yesterday by John Williams, of Long Beach, former governor of the Rotary district comprising California and Nevada.

"Rotary has become a force because it is practical," said Williams. "A philosophy of life in which service is an ideal is presented to business men and has taken hold of their imaginations and, through organized effort, has become a movement of world-wide importance. Rotary clubs have been organized in 35 countries, altogether some 2400 clubs having been established."

Yesterday's meeting was presided over by G. J. Daley. Two solos, by Robert Brown, featured the program.

Dance Hall and Billiard Parlor Permits Denied

The county supervisors late yesterday considered five applications for licenses to operate dance halls and billiard halls. All but one were rejected, upon recommendation of the sheriff's and district attorney's offices.

Saul A. Tellez was granted license to operate the Simpatia Benefit and Social club, at Delhi. Applications of C. Rodriguez to conduct a dance hall at Stanton, and of H. H. Riley, to conduct a dance hall at the county fair grounds, were refused.

G. Chaires was refused a license to operate a billiard hall at Richfield. C. E. Hari was refused license to operate a billiard hall near La Habra.

Mothers, Do This--

When the children cough, rub Musterole on their throats and chests. No telling how soon the symptoms may develop into croup, or worse. And then's when you're glad you have a jar of Musterole at hand to give prompt relief.

As first aid, Musterole is excellent. Keep a jar ready for instant use. It is the remedy for adults, too. Relieves sore throat, bronchitis, pleurisy, croup, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of back of joints, sprains, sore muscles, chilblains, frosted feet and blisters of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

TUBERCULOSIS SEALS WILL BE IN MAILS SOON

Typewriters are ticking merrily in a room on the first floor of the Hall of Records, many addresses are being typed on big envelopes and in the latter are being placed letters and quotas of pretty little seals, each worth a penny, but of much more value to victims of tuberculosis and to underweight and malnourished children, who, if not given the proper treatment and environment, will contract the dread disease.

The sale of these Christmas seals each year at the time when everyone is happy and longing to help the poor and unfortunate, while purchasing gifts for loved ones, brings the funds with which the Orange County Tuberculosis association carries on its great humanitarian work.

Charles N. Jefferson has beautifully expressed the Christmas atmosphere as follows:

"Christmas is the one holiday that cannot be separated from the brightness of a child's eyes or the music of a child's laughter. The world had for ages been despondent and hopeless and no one philosopher nor sage nor miracle worker had been able to lift it out of its dark mood. But when God took a Child and set Him in the midst, then all things were made new. The shepherds were glad and so were the wise men and so was everybody and human hearts began to sing a new song, 'Peace on earth, good will to men.'"

The state and local associations realize that "civilization moves forward on the feet of little children." California, thanks to Christmas seals and purchase of the gift of health, now has provided more care for little children, unable to fight alone, than any other state in the country.

The seals will reach the people of Orange county at the Thanksgiving period and the county association makes the plea that every citizen set aside as much as possible in gratitude for favors received.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Sam Houston

Sketches by Redner
Synopsis by Braucher

The treaty with Mexico signed, Sam Houston was elected president of Texas. It now became his intense desire to have the country he had saved annexed to the United States. Congress voted for it, but President Van Buren rejected the proposal. It was feared Texas would "extend the area of slavery."

His dream denied, Houston worked hard within Texas, building a navy, enlisting an army, and creating a financial system.

Ineligible to succeed himself, Houston retired from the presidency at the end of his term.

In 1840, in Alabama, Houston, then 47, took his third wife, Miss Margaret Moffett Lea. This union was to help bring peace to declining days that were to see one of Houston's great dreams gone amiss. Meantime, Houston, in 1841, was recalled to the presidency.

THE TINYMITES
BY HAL COCHRAN

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Tinymites had never had such heaps of fun, and they were glad that in the icebox they had found a lot of things to eat. Although there were no forks or knives, they had the time of their lives by nibbling with their fingers, which they thought was quite a treat.

They'd climb upon the shelves, and then, for exercise, climb down again, because they knew that exercise makes appetites real strong. Then Scouty shouted, "My, I'd love to see what's in that door above. Let's pry it open. We can put things back where they belong."

So, when the shining knob was tried, the upper door flew open wide, and Copy hopped right in the place, but quickly turned around. "We'd best keep out of here," said he. "It's just as cold as it can be." And now, of course, you all can guess that ice is what he found.

By this time, they were all filled up from saucer, plate and bowl and cup. Then Carry shouted, "Listen now, and hear what I've to say. A dandy cart is in the yard, and so it wouldn't be so hard for us to load it up real high and take some food away."

They laughed and all agreed that such a plan was good. "Don't take too much," said Scouty as each Tinymite grabbed hold of that and this. Load after load was quickly sent out to the cart. Away they went with food that very likely Mister Farmer'd never miss.

And, as they traveled 'cross the yard, old Clowny sure was laughing hard. He'd sneaked out of the woodshed and was sitting in a tree. They don't know where I am, he thought. Perhaps they think that I am caught, but wait until they leave that food and then they'll quickly see.

BEAUTY CHATS
EDNA KENT FORBES

SMOOTH ELBOWS

This time of year, elbows are a difficulty. Cold weather makes them chap, though they are protected by sleeves, and it is hard to make them properly smooth and attractive for sleeveless evening frocks. Unless you try this treatment:—

Make up my cleansing cream formula (it's in the "Beauty" pamphlet, in case you haven't got it) but instead of the mineral oil use olive oil, and instead of the spermaceti, use lanoline. Lanoline will make fat, it will also grow hair. Therefore it is not to be recommended for facial massage, but is excellent for elbows. As you won't need much, make up half or even a quarter of the amount the formula calls for.

Scrub your elbows with very hot water, soap, and a brush, dry and at once put on the lanoline cream. The skin should be steamy and hot for this to be most effective, for the pores are open and the thick cream more readily absorbed. Rub it in well, the best way I think is to make a cup of the hand, and rub this round and round the elbows. Wipe off what is left on the surface of the skin.

The only fault with this treatment is its awkwardness. You can't very well bind up the elbows to hold the cream on them, as you put on a cosmetic glove to protect the hand. Or rather, you can, but making a bandage to the elbow is a great nuisance. I'd suggest you try this massage when you have a good hour work or leisure ahead, when you can roll up your sleeves and let the grease soak into the elbows while you do something else. You can do housework, for instance, and if you wear a working dress, it won't matter if the elbows do rub against it. Then wash off what's left of the cream and powder.

Use Lanoline for Thin Elbows

Pete—it is all right to use water on your face before the massage with the olive oil, but have water warm enough to open the pores so that the skin will have more chance to absorb the oil.

Massage with finger tips until muscles tingle from the increased circulation, then wipe off the superfluous oil and close pores by applying wet cold cloths over the face, or a very cold rinse; or by an ice rub.

Facts About Telephone

The city of Toledo, with over 50,000 telephones in service, has about as many telephones as the combined number in Chile and Colombia, South America.

The development through research of an alloy, cheaper than platinum but just as efficient, for use in telephone electrical contact points resulted in large saving in the first cost of apparatus added to the plant of the Bell system in a single year.

PROGRESS

I cannot think that life is nothing more

Than striving for achievement and 'or place;

That there's no purpose to this human race

Save mere existence till death says it's o'er.

There must be nobler things to struggle for

Than food and drink, and finer tests to face

Than which was swiftest in a golden chase

And which could knock his rivals to the floor.

Beyond all skill and all that it achieves,

Beyond the charm which radiant beauty gives,

Beyond the work that every master leaves,

Beyond the life of everyone who lives,

The spirit must continue to progress

Or vain is every dream of happiness.

OUR SCENIC BEAUTY IS BEING CHANGED INTO HORSEPOWER

BY Olive Roberts Barton

Another state has joined the procession in fighting the great power combine that is slowly but surely acquiring some of the finest scenic properties in the country. Little by little our waterfalls are being harnessed to turn the turbines of electric generators, and little by little we are losing our birthright of scenery.

The business of using water power for fuel is not new. Our picturesque old mills on every creek in the land attest to this. But the miller did little harm with his dam and millrace. Certainly he added rather than detracted from the landscape. But the idea of using waterpower on a scale that dams up rivers and spreads water over hundreds of square miles of our most beautiful mountain valleys, or that diverts an entire river from its course through huge tubes causing a falls almost as stupendous and beautiful as that of Niagara to disappear from the face of the earth, is another matter. I speak of the Cumberland Falls in Kentucky.

There are dams, such as the Roosevelt dam in Arizona that are a Godsend to the country. It irrigates several dry states and has quickened the territory from a dry unproductive waste to fertile producing soil.

But water power dams are different. Their only recommendation is the lower cost of the production of electricity and the saving of fuel. But we are skeptical about the saving reaching so far as the pockets of the people who are the ultimate consumers. Even so, would it compensate the nation for the irremediable loss?

Fuel is still abundant. We are not yet driven to the wall for coal. And there is still oil in plenty. And how about the possibility of artesian wells that Germany has recently utilized with such success for power production? When these things have failed

The telephone lineman whose special duty it is to keep the branches of trees from injuring the wires or cables carries a booklet carefully prepared under the guidance of forestry experts, showing him how to trim trees so that his work will be a benefit, rather than an injury, to them.

Popular San Diego Woman Recovers From Long Illness

Amazing Improvements in Mrs. Jester's Health Surprises Friends. Serious Ailments Caused by Nervous Breakdown Relieved and Strength Restored by Tanlac. Looks and Feels Better Than Ever

"Tanlac has certainly done wonders for me; I cannot praise it enough," declares Mrs. T. D. Jester, 1268 Pennsylvania avenue, San Diego, Calif. "I had suffered a nervous breakdown, and for many months afterward I continued to get worse and worse, despite all the different nerve medicines I tried. Nothing seemed to help until I tried Tanlac."

"I was as near to being a complete nervous and physical wreck as I could be, without entirely collapsing. The slightest noise would make me want to scream, and after retiring it would be hours before I could sleep. I would awaken with terrible headaches and the slightest exertion would tire me out so that I would be trembling. I lost weight and appetite. I tried Tanlac with little expectation of improvement."

"Before I had taken all of the first bottle I developed a ravenous appetite, and was sleeping better. I continued to improve rapidly and felt like a different person entirely. In less than three weeks I had gained seven pounds! Later, my weight went up from 106 to 125 pounds. If your troubles are similar to those from which Mrs. Jester suffered so keenly, get relief before it is too late! Tanlac will doubtless help you just as it helped Mrs. Jester—and as it has helped thousands of other sufferers. Tanlac is a pure and wholesome compound, made from herbs, roots and barks, according to the famous Tanlac formula. It is a wonderful tonic medicine, for run-down and nervous conditions and for digestive disorders. All good druggists sell Tanlac—get your first bottle today! Over 40 million bottles sold.

Even the best residential sections are dressed up by concrete pavement

Widest Concrete Street in San Bernardino

When you step from the train at San Bernardino, California, and pass through the depot, you are sure to notice the wide concrete pavement on Third Street. This is 180 feet from curb to curb—the widest concrete street in the country.

You will also notice that in spite of the heavy traffic which this pavement continually carries, there are no ruts, no bumps. The pavement is as true and even as when built. Cars don't skid on this pavement even in wet weather.

San Bernardino has been paving with concrete for six years. Today the city has a total that is rapidly approaching the 1,000,000 square yard mark.

Of course there is a reason. Concrete streets have practically no maintenance cost. First cost is practically last. Such paving proves a true investment.

More than 3,000 other cities in the United States know this from experience.

All of the facts are in our free booklet on "Concrete Streets." Ask for your copy.

USE OF WATER DISCUSSED AT CITRUS MEET

FULLERTON, Nov. 17.—More than 150 persons registered at yesterday's session of the citrus extension school, being conducted at the Fullerton union high school under the supervision of the University of California. This registration makes the present school the largest in point of attendance of any yet held, Warren R. Schoonover, extension specialist in citrus culture, stated.

Problems of practical interest were presented by the experts to the growers gathered here from all parts of Orange county and sections of Los Angeles county. Following each lecture, many questions were asked by the farmers regarding the subjects discussed.

The entire program Tuesday was devoted to water and soil fertility, with R. W. Hodgson, associate professor of subtropical horticulture of the University of California, and W. R. Schoonover delivering the lectures.

The lecturers discussed the condition in the soil necessary for the good development of the roots. Proper fertilizers and the proper amount of water were named as important factors.

Mr. Schoonover stated that the rate at which citrus trees use water depends upon the leaf surface and upon climatic conditions. He pointed out that an orange tree would use much more water when a hot northeast wind was blowing than when the cool sea breezes were sweeping in.

He said that the rate at which the citrus tree uses water does not depend upon the type of soil in the grove. In other words, whether the soil is sandy or clay was not contributing factors to the amount of water used by the tree.

The lecturers stated that the citrus tree uses water at a uniform rate whether the soil is wet or dry, provided the moisture is present. "We find that a citrus tree is healthy when there is a fluctuating water content in the soil, as this provides for a ventilation of the soil which is necessary," stated Mr. Schoonover. "If the roots of the tree are kept wet at all times, the roots will rot and will retard the growth of the tree."

Mr. Schoonover said that a large and active root system is desired for a citrus tree and one of the best methods to secure this result was to permit the soil to dry out for a depth of two or three feet before irrigating.

Tomorrow afternoon the school will adjourn at 2:30 o'clock for the purpose of a special field demonstration.

MARLAND OIL COMPANY TO DRILL SIX NEW WELLS IN SEAL BEACH DISTRICT

SEAL BEACH, Nov. 17.—Six new wells are being started in the Seal Beach district by the Marland Oil company as a follow-up of its success in its Bixby No. 2 and No. 3 wells. It was reported yesterday. Four of the new wells are to be drilled on the discovery property, the Bixby ranch, the other two wells to be put down on the Selover property further south and west.

The new Bixby wells are the Bixby No. 5, No. 6, No. 7, and No. 8. Bixby No. 5 will be drilled one location east of Bixby No. 4 and Bixby No. 6 will be put down one location west of Bixby No. 4. No. 7 will be a location further west, and No. 8 will be drilled on the east side of the property offsetting the Associated Oil company's Bryant lease. The Selover wells are offsets to the Standard Oil company's San Gabriel property.

Bixby No. 4, the Marland's second, and latest completion at Seal Beach, continues to produce at a rate exceeding 2300 barrels a day of 24 degrees gravity oil. It is producing from 58 feet of sand, the bottom being at 4468 feet. The well runs the Marland's total present production at Seal Beach to more than 4100 barrels a day, and two other wells, the Bixby No. 4 and Selover No. 1, are ready for production tests. The Selover well will drill out ready for the test today.

SEEK FUNDS FOR H. B. NEGRO CLUB

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Nov. 17.—That a national campaign has been started to raise money to finance the negro colony started along the coast south of this city more than a year ago, was learned today. Members of the colony have appealed to colored persons all over the nation to assist them in saving a portion of the beach for the exclusive use of the colored people. A total of $25,000 is sought.

When the buildings at the colony were nearly completed, they caught fire and were totally destroyed. Since that time nothing has been done. The promoter, Hal R. Clark, was obliged to mortgage the property because of the losses, and, according to reports, he is now asking the members of the Pacific Beach club to sell more memberships to raise $25,000. The money would be used to pay off the mortgage and to pay the taxes.

Armistice has copies of the Black Dispatch, a negro paper of Oklahoma City, and of the Pittsburg Courier, another negro paper. Both the papers carried long stories in regard to the enterprise here.

A reception will be given at the church for the new pastor and his family on Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. All members and friends are invited.

L. B. EDUCATOR ORANGE SPEAKER

ORANGE, Nov. 17.—"A Decalogue for Dads" was the title of an address given before the West Orange P. T. A. last night in the West Orange school building by W. L. Stephens, city superintendent of schools of Long Beach. The meeting last night was planned to commemorate Father and Son week.

Too much spending money for children, a general letdown in the co-operative spirit of parents and children and the use of the home as a place for entertainment and social diversion rather than for its original purpose, were blamed by Stephens for the conditions prevalent in the country at present.

The father should assume a more central place in home life, stated Stephens. Both father and mother should co-operate with their children and come to really know them. A study of boys and girls associates should be made in order to know whether such association is beneficial or harmful, according to Stephens.

Home study and home and school education should be more rigidly adhered to, stated Stephens.

Mrs. J. V. Kelsey, president of the fourth district of the P. T. A., opened the meeting with a brief talk on the work of the P. T. A. She recited a poem entitled "A Father's Duty." Mrs. Earl Moore, chairman of the P. T. A. committee on education of the P. T. A., spoke on "What is the P. T. A. It Stands for What and Does What?"

Following the speaking program, there was a social hour in which the group of more than 70 persons, including many fathers, sang P. T. A. songs and partook of refreshments of pie, sandwiches and coffee, served under the direction of Mrs. Joe Witt, refreshment committee chairman.

The meeting last night was in charge of Mrs. G. U. Straw, chairman of the program committee. She obtained the speakers for the occasion.

L. W. BLODGET NAMED BEACH CHAMBER HEAD

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Nov. 17.—Dr. G. A. Shank, president of the chamber of commerce, has resigned. L. W. Blodgett, first vice president of the organization, former city attorney, and recently appointed chief deputy district attorney, has been selected to head the chamber of commerce for the remainder of the year.

Dr. Shank declared that his recent appointment as a member of the city board of trustees, did not leave him time to devote to the chamber of commerce and that he did not feel that he could competently serve two prominent civic organizations.

Although Dr. Shank resigned as president of the chamber of commerce, he retained his position as a director of the organization.

Dale M. Peters, a member of the Orange county harbor committee, discussed the financing of the harbor campaign at the chambers' meeting and in 10 minutes raised $75, the local quota for the harbor campaign.

Peters also introduced a motion which resulted in the organization unanimously supporting the high school football team in its games. Other branches of athletics at the school will receive the support of the chamber of commerce.

Dave Stewart spoke of further improvements on the east side of town, advocating a paving program.

Water Company To Spend $20,000 On Water Pipes

YORBA LINDA, Nov. 17.—Expenditure of approximately $20,000 for installation of a new 20-inch steel pipe line to improve the water distribution system of the Yorba Linda Water company is to be made during the coming winter months, officials of the company revealed today.

The new line is to run from Reservoir No. 1 north to a point west of the booster plant, where it will connect with the main pipe line. It will provide better service for the ranches on the west side of the tract. It is later to be extended to the upper reservoir.

Plans for the project have been completed and Superintendent J. E. Lewis has been instructed to order the necessary pipe and other supplies.

Directors of the company have just passed on the sixth assessment to be passed this year. Each year six assessments enable the company to pay all operating expenses and have approximately $20,000 additional for permanent improvement to the plant.

GOOD—BUT NOT ENOUGH

The instruction given by the board of city trustees to the city engineer to clear the Santiago creek bed from Main street to a point west of Flower street is a reminder of the fact that there ought to be a protection district organized for the purpose of looking after the Santiago creek bed from the hills to the point where it joins with the Santa Ana river channel.

A few years ago, the creek, during a heavy flood, went over its banks near Tustin avenue and did considerable damage to the south. Another flood of equal proportions will almost surely do an equal amount of damage, possibly not at the same point.

For years, property owners along the creek have exerted whatever means they found fit to prevent the creek from further encroachments upon their properties. Embankments, brush and fences have been used to divert the main stream. This has been done in many cases without regard to how the stream will strike the property on the other side of the creek. One man turns it across the creek, and the other man turns it back.

In recent years, rock and gravel concerns have added to the complications. We aren't sure that their activities would conform to a laid-out plan of a protection district.

Of course, the best protection that can be afforded would be that of a reservoir. The prospect for securing a dam at the fourth crossing of the Santiago seems fairly bright. However, this project has been dragging along now for some 20 years, and there is no certainty that the dam will be built within the next five or ten years.

In the absence of a protection district, the work that is to be done by the Santa Ana city authorities is indeed advisable. The clearing away of debris and brush, however, should not stop at Main street. It looks as though the city should continue this work at least from city limits to city limits.

The county might undertake similar work above Santa Ana. While the city of Orange does not extend across the creek, that city could very well join in any protective effort that might be put forth.

The county and the two cities are vitally interested, not only because private property will be threatened by a freshet, but because bridges and highways will be threatened. A few hundred dollars spent now in doing whatever is necessary to keep the stream pointed down the creek bed, instead of against banks and bridge approaches, may save many thousands of dollars.

IMPORTANCE OF ZONING

Without going into the details of the zoning ordinance as proposed by the City Planning commission, The Register desires to again declare its belief in zoning.

In city planning, zoning is essential. Industrial areas should be made separate from business and residential areas.

The city that makes no effort to zone itself is creating trouble for itself. We should keep in mind that Santa Ana is to be here for generations to come. There are quite a number of residents of this city who knew Santa Ana when it was a village of half a dozen buildings. There are a few who remember when Santa Ana townsite was surveyed. They have seen vast changes, and their children and their children's children will see other changes. Santa Ana is not now and cannot be for many decades to come a city that has settled down to a condition where it can be said that it will be tomorrow as it is today.

We might say "let the future take care of itself." Granting that the second and third generations from now will have problems to solve that we cannot now see, our job need not take vision that far ahead. All we need to do is to look ahead five, 10 or 20 years, through a period in which most of us now living will be interested as residents of Santa Ana, and we will see that it is to our own direct interest to adopt a reasonable, carefully considered plan of zoning.

BULKY PUBLICATIONS

Publishers may pay some attention to these words of Edward T. Hall of St. Louis, president of the Association of National Advertisers. Addressing the country's advertising men, he says:

"It takes about a week to read through carefully some of our popular magazines and Sunday papers, and who, in these busy days, can spare that much time? Certainly not the active man or woman, whose attention, as a general thing, we seek to attract."

There will be widespread agreement with this. Who has not heard complaints about the size and weight of the larger magazines and the metropolitan Sunday newspapers, and the hopelessness of trying to wade through them?

The more successful publishers have certainly gone too far in these respects, and will have to change their policy, making their publications easier to handle and read, if they want to hold their subscribers and make their advertising space effective.

HOTELS ON THE HIGH SEAS

Here is romance, along with ultra-modern transportation facilities.

An engineer of the Du Pont Powder company has worked out a plan for a string of landing stages or "seadromes" extending across the Atlantic, at intervals of 400 miles. They are to be about 11 acres in extent, measuring 200 feet by 840 feet, with a draft deep enough to keep them steady. They will be supported by buoyancy chambers and anchored by steel cables to the ocean floor.

With hops only 400 miles apart, and shelter, fuel, food and other supplies available at every station, flying between America and Europe should be a fairly simple matter.

Those landing stages, if they realize the designer's plans, should become marvelously popular institutions, for travelers as well as professional fliers. They will be vast floating hotels, with accommodations for passengers desiring to stay over, and with interests and entertainment of many kinds. Travelers who love the sea, or who need salt air and sunshine, or who are merely attracted by the unique contrast to life ashore, will probably want to linger as tourists do in the Yellowstone Park hotels, instead of hurrying from shore to shore. Life on the ocean wave will take on new charms.

It is a dream that may be realized sooner than most of us think.

EARNINGS OF WOMEN

American women earn more than they used to. The average woman worker filing an income tax gets from $1000 to $2000 a year. Over 150,000 women who are heads of families had average incomes last year of nearly $3000. Of single working women there were some 773,314, with average incomes of $2436. There were 173,225 married women who filed income tax returns separately from their husbands, and their average incomes were about $5500.

Of course many women earn money on a lower level than the income tax payers. Many of them work half time, or are in ill-paid occupations.

But the general fact is that last year more than a million women earned enough to bring them under the income tax law, and they earned pretty competently.

You've got to hand it to Henry Ford for reconciling philanthropy with practical business. He's perfectly willing to give six days' pay for five days' work, if the employee does six days' work in five days.

Must Wake Up to Crime Problem

Few of us are directly affected by the so-called crime wave. That makes the effort to reform criminal procedure difficult. The man who has had his pocket picked, his house robbed, a relative or friend murdered is keen enough to have the culprit nailed swiftly and certainly. And he is bitter when our archaic system of dealing with crime puts a stumbling block in the way of justice.

But those who have first-hand relations with the criminal band are only a slender minority of our great population. The majority of us escape unscathed. Our only knowledge of crime comes from the newspapers. We do not appreciate the social aspect of the problem because we have not been stung.

But until the public mind realizes that the entire social life of the community enters into the question, there will be no real remedy.

Whether the term "crime wave" properly describes the present era of lawlessness or is an exaggerated expression, there is no mistake that crime is widely prevalent in the United States, and that a comparison of conditions across the border in Canada or in England is by no means creditable to this country.

It is true that the criminal takes advantage of every new invention to speed his business. Good roads and the automobile have greatly facilitated the suddenness of his attack and his chances of escape. We may expect that aviation will bring in more problems.

But criminals do not thrive so much by availing themselves of new inventions as by taking advantage of the archaic administration of our laws. Our criminal codes, in fact, have become so outworn that they are used not to protect society but the vicious element at war with it. The transition from rural to urban and from urban to metropolitan conditions, bringing in a whole new host of social problems, has not witnessed any attempt to adjust our criminal procedure to meet these new conditions. Wide-awake in adopting the latest improvements in mechanical devices to add to our comfort and safety, we have been singularly lacking in seeing that our machinery to protect life and property is kept abreast of our needs.

There are evidences, of course, that the public is waking up to the seriousness of the situation. Many states have crime commissions investigating what ought to be done. In California, here, there has just been prepared a report which will be presented to the next legislature, making various needed changes in our criminal law.

It is not a temporary, but a chronic condition that must be studied. Therefore, the cure will not come from temporary fits of agitation. The remedy does not lie in patching and tinkering. The whole question needs the most serious attention. We must get out of our quiescent state of mind, and have administration, prosecuting machinery, the courts and punitive measures are reformed to suit the problems of today.

ISOLATION RULE IN SLEEPING SICKNESS

The condition known as African sleeping sickness is caused by an organism known as the trypanosome, and is transmitted by the bite of tsetse fly.

Some years ago numerous cases of a disease with apparently similar symptoms, so far as concerns the tendency to sleep, appeared in many countries. In England, more than 5000 cases were reported in 1924, and several small epidemics have appeared in this country.

This disease is, however, different from the African sleeping sickness. Because of the fact that it is due to inflammation of the tissues of the brain, it is known as encephalitis.

The complaint is severe, since more than 30 per cent of those affected die, and 70 per cent of those that recover from the acute attack show secondary symptoms of the most serious nature. Only one patient out of six recovers completely.

Dr. Walter Freeman of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Washington, D. C., has analyzed the present status of our knowledge of chronic epidemic encephalitis.

He points out that several bacteriologists have isolated germs which they believe have a direct relationship to the cause of the disease, and furthermore that this organism is found to persist in the tissues after recovery from the acute form of the disorder.

This persistence of the bacteria may be the cause of the numerous secondary complaints which follow. The disease is without a doubt contagious during its acute stage, since numerous cases have been reported from one person to another.

In seven cases which Dr. Freeman studied carefully, the disease developed in persons who had been in close association with patients suffering from encephalitis.

Scientific medicine will, no doubt, find eventually a method of exterminating the virus of epidemic encephalitis.

The evidence is clear that treatment must not end with the recovery from the acute attack, but must continue as long as there are any secondary symptoms, since the continuous presence of the organism means continued possibility of spread of the disease.

While the condition is not extremely contagious, as with some of the acute infectious diseases, there is no doubt that it is transmissible and that a person in the latent stage, apparently on the road to recovery, may still transmit the disease to other persons.

Obviously anyone suffering with this disorder should be in comparative isolation.

Playing With Fire

Safer Conditions In Prospect

Pasadena Star-News

Despite the frightful loss of life in preventable accidents in the United States, the trend is toward a greater measure of safety. The grade-crossing is still a fertile source of tragedy. But gradually such crossings are being eliminated. And railroading, as to operation of trains, is much safer than formerly. Some really remarkable records are being made in this.

Automobile traffic is yet hazardous. But the development of motoring has come with phenomenal rapidity. There has not been time to perfect regulation, but surely, however, this problem is being worked out. The toll of life is frightful yet. But better things are coming. Gradually, but surely, ways and means are being found to cope with this great menace to human life. Traffic ten years hence will be much safer than now.

Protection against fire in buildings is being enhanced. The fireproof building will come eventually. Cement and composition construction will be more common. And the wood used will be treated in some scientific way to resist fire. This hazard will be lessened.

Safety at sea has advanced greatly. Seldom is there a serious tragedy on the water. Life-saving apparatus figures. So does radio, in calling for aid. And weather reports, in warning shipping.

Safety in the air is being stressed, as the extraordinary development of aeronautics proceeds.

Safety to health receives scientific attention. Cities and rural communities are made sanitary. Sanitation is wider spread than ever before. And the masses of the people are more intelligent as to preservation of health. A better mental attitude is maintained, which wards off much disease. There is more prevention of disease, and less need of cure.

Safety devices are installed in factories and in mines. In truth, in every field of human endeavor, the value of human life is put high, and earnest scientific, humane effort is made to conserve life and to promote safety of human beings.

And so, as the race advances, as science goes forward and as invention keeps its progressive course, human life will be surrounded by safeguards against accident and disease. Life will be prolonged. And comfort and happiness will be promoted.

WHAT DAD DOESN'T KNOW

My dad, he knows a lot of things—I hear him now and then
When he sits after dinner with his friends—some other men,
All telling of the things they did when they were boys, like me,
And then they laugh and joke and talk, as friendly as can be.
But when we boys are there alone and nobody beside Except my mother and the girl, he is so dignified
We eat our dinner pretty still, just like my dad eats his,
And never tell the things we do—I wonder why that is?

My dad, when he is with his friends, is awfully friendly, too,
And laughs until he holds his sides when they are laughing, too.
He tells them how he got his start and how he worked all day
And read a book by candle light and hid the book away.
It's awful interesting talk about the book he read,
And things we never heard about, but it is time for bed
In the most interesting part, although we'd like to stay
Because tomorrow he can't tell, he's busy through the day.

My dad would make the finest friend a boy could ever see,
And we'd be dandy friends of his if he would let us be;
We'd like to sit around a fire some time outdoors and hear
About when he's a boy like us, and laugh and shout and cheer Like he does with his real men friends, and we might grow to be
As fine a man as my dad is, but he don't seem to see
The way we feel and we can't tell—but with those friends of his He's like we wish he was with us—I wonder why this is?

Service for the Tomorrow
Of the Race

Dr. Robert Bruce Taylor in Kiwanis Magazine

Service clubs are among the most significant movements of our time, and men who belong to them should maintain sufficient detachment of view to enable them to ask questions regarding their future. They began in the desire for fellowship in a world where business tends to become a form of warfare. To know a man is as a rule to have suspicions vanish, and any society which deliberately sets itself to find the best things in character will create the very thing that it seeks. But the service clubs have now come to take friendliness for granted and have launched out as general agents of philanthropy. Their main interest has been in underprivileged youth. The lame and halt and the blind, those who are destined to go through life deprived of so much that to you and me is life itself, constitute an irresistible appeal. If some paid collector came to our office asking for money for spectacles or for boots we should ask many things as to his bona fides; but it is a different story when the appeal is made by a man whom we all trust, in a gathering the first purpose of which is the creation of the spirit of geniality and tolerance. "Boys we are just going off for our holidays and we have been going over our fishing tackle and dreaming of the fun we are going to have. But here is a whole crowd of little kids who will never get away from asphalt pavements, will never see the glint of the sun upon rippling water unless we make it possible!"—who can resist such an appeal! This temper has a multitude of manifestations. You remember well that fine fellow, John Lewis, killed in the war. He was city editor of the Montreal Star, and we are apt to think that journalists are cynics because they see so much. But John Lewis loved boys and understood them. His time and his money were poured into the care of boys. And when he left all the career that was before him and went overseas it was the same enthusiasm that claimed him. He was prepared to give his life for the tomorrow of the race. He was killed, of course. He was the kind of man who was bound to be killed, but his life and death were all of a piece. It is a literary fashion today to laugh at service. Let those laugh who have served and not those who sat back.

"America's Best Poetry"

Contributed to The Register by Marshall Louis Mertins

Looking over collections of "America's Best Poetry" as judged by decades now passed into dreamless dust, one smiles at the naive manner in which the best poetry was passed by and the poorest chosen, just as some decades hence people will be smiling at our judgment of today.

Here lies "Cheever's Poets of America," published by The World Publishing Co. in 1876. It contains 275 poems, many by poets at this moment unknown to the student of American poetry. There are some by Longfellow, some by Whittier and some by Bryant. There are many by Halleck, and one by a modest gentleman subscribing himself, "O. W. H." The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table was unusually reticent.

So far as the writer is able to judge only a slim part of the total of 275 have been preserved in the hearts of American people. The eight to win a place in the Hall of Fame are: "Hagar in the Wilderness," N. P. Willis; "The Death of the Flowers," Bryant; also, "To a Waterfall," "Marco Bozzaris," Halleck; "Burial of the Miniskink," Longfellow; also, "Hymn to the

The Corn Is Ripe

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

How complacently do we view the ripening corn! The first corn is being cut in Missouri, and in a little while "Old King Corn and all his men will tent upon the fields again." The American Indians domesticated and developed corn as we know it from a wild plant found on the highlands of Mexico. They cannot take its ripening as quietly as we can. To them it is a miracle of Nature, a veritable manna from heaven falling. That is why, as the corn ripens, the Indians are everywhere dancing. All through the Pueblo villages of the southwest, upon the plains, within the mountains, the Indians are dancing and singing their song of thanksgiving. Some of these festivals, like the Snake dance of the Mohi and the corn-pagant of Santo Domingo, are famous. They are all the same thing, and they are held as the corn ripens wherever there are American Indians. It is not, indeed, wonderful—that a great stalk, with its pendant ears, grows from a single grain in a short season.

So it was that while the rest of us in Missouri regarded the first ripening corn as a commonplace and never thought of it as anything more than our due, the Senecas and Cayugas held their annual corn dance last week out in Audrain county. They came thither from far away, as they do every year, to hold this dance upon Cowskin Creek. It is a folk custom with them—a tribal tradition. They came, they danced, they thanked God for the corn, and they departed. Meanwhile, we who never think of corn in quite that way, nor perhaps of Nature as the indulgent mother she is, looked on from our automobiles and remarked what queer people the Indians are!

But there is no helping that. The first corn shocks dot the fields, the stalks grow golden, and night has the wine-like flavor of autumn. The corn is ripe.

No. 14 Sympathetic Dads Get Results

BECAUSE THEY ARE WISE
ENOUGH to know that a few tools and a place to build things are more of a home attraction than temporary rewards or a long list of "thou shalts."

BECAUSE THEY ABHOR WEAKNESS in any form whatsoever and absolutely refuse to excuse it. "Victory is to the strong," is their slogan, whether referring to mental, physical, spiritual or social life and activity.

BECAUSE THEY COUNT IT THEIR SACRED PRIVILEGE to give the boys, step by step, the intimate sex information that they need. Best of all, they themselves practice physical fitness and have no patience with a double standard of morals for anyone.

BECAUSE THEY RECOGNIZE THE FACT that a boy's books and magazines are his "Silent Companions," and so take as much pains in seeing that these are as carefully chosen as their new clothes; that they fit as well; wear as well and make the boys as self-respecting; not forgetting that they wear out and need occasional replacing.
